The Times' City Article, dated Friday evening, April 9, reports that the English Funds opened heavily, but in consequence of a trifling improvement in French prices there was rather less weakness at the close. There was a fair demand for discount at the Bank on Friday. In open market the rates are still 2¼ to 2⅝ per cent.

IMPORTANT FROM WASHINGTON.

Report of the Kansas Conference Committee.

Its Consideration Postponed Until the Second Monday in May

Interesting Correspondence on the Slavery Question

Refusal to Extend Colt's Patent—Camels for the Government—The Oregon Indians, &c.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

WASHINGTON, Friday, April 23.

The vote to-day on ENGLISH'S bill, I find on conversation with both sides, this evening, is not regarded as a positive test of its ultimate fate. It is believed that HILL and THIPPS, as also one or two Anti-Lecompton Democrats, who voted for the postponement, will not vote for the bill on its passage; that not more than two Southern Democrats will continue to stand out.

Senator WILSON says the passage of the bill is a mere question of time, and that it is certain to go through. There is a rumor that DOUGLAS himself will lead off for the bill, but the foundation is simply that he has been urged to do it.

The House Committee yesterday gave a quietus to COLT's Patent, deciding strongly not to report for an extension.

The Senate Patent Committee will meet on Monday to decide on the india-rubber patents of HAYWARD and CHAFFEE.

The parties with whom Government has contracted for a supply of camels are to deliver one hundred and sixty at New-Orleans on the 1st of October, and have started two vessels from New-York to procure them at Tangier.

The Turkish Pasha is just recovering from a severe illness.

It is understood that the President has nominated Lieutenant STEVENSON, dropped some three years ago, for restoration to the Army.

Mr. H. FARRAR, Attorney-General of Oregon, has arrived here on Territorial business, and gives interesting news relative to the situation of affairs. He says that the Indians are canvassing the anticipated hostilities between the Mormons and the Government; that they believe the Mormons are the strongest and are evidently disposed to recommence hostilities whenever operations begin at Salt Lake. FARRAR believes the Mormons to have been the instigators of the former Indian war, and says the Indians admit receiving arms and ammunition from them.

[FROM THE REPORTER FOR THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

WASHINGTON, Friday, April 23.

Among the papers transmitted to the Senate to day from the President, on the subject of African Slavery, and African and Coolie laborers, is one from Mr. MASON, our Minister to France, dated February 12th, in which he relates a conversation with Count WALEWSKI. Mr. MASON inquired whether there was any truth in the statements in the English newspapers that French vessels freighted with African emigrants would be regarded by British cruisers as engaged in the African Slave-trade? Count WALEWSKI replied no, that there had been some communication between the two Governments, and that the British would not object to the French scheme while the wants of the British colonies were being supplied by the coolie trade. Count WALENSKI urged that by the plan adopted to secure African labor, which is indispensable to their colonies, the emigrants were free, and were rescued generally from impending immolation that, relieved from ignorance and heathenism of the most degraded character, they would be humanized, they would be humanized and christianized by being placed in contact with the French colonists. It does not appear whether a consideration is to be paid to the chiefs of tribes for their captures, or the people. but Mr. MASON infers there is. Nor is the duration of their service explained, and it remains to be seen whether any of the emigrants will serve their term or return to their country. Judging from the tone of the public press and reasoning a priori. Mr. MASON feels confident that in future we will see fanatical denunciation of American Slavery greatly moderated, if not silenced, in France—perhaps in England. He adds that it is quite evident that the conviction is gaining strength, both in England and France, that the compulsory emancipation of the slaves in their tropical colonies by authority of their Governments, was a grave political error—an error unjust to the colonists, whose rights of property were destroyed, and to the colonies by the annihilation of the labor which made them productive, without securing any compensating benefit.

There is also a letter from Secretary CASS to Lord NAPIER, dated 10th April, in which the former says that the joint blockade of the Coast of Africa has been pursued some years, and the benefit it has produced bears no reasonable proportion, he regrets to observe, to the expenditure of life and treasure it has cost. But there is another way of proceeding, without the danger, and difficulties, and inefficiency which beset a blockade, and which is sure to succeed, if adopted and persevered in, and that is to close the slave mart of the world, or rather the Island of Cuba, which is now almost the only region where the slave dealer can find a market. If these unfortune victims could not be sold they would not be bought. To shut the ports of Cuba to their entrance is to shut the ports of Africa to their departure, and to effect this nothing would seem to be wanting but the cordial cooperation of the Spanish Government. The introduction of the slave into this country is a fact which General Cass believes the present generation has not witnessed. It is understood that Spain was entered into engagements with Great Britain, if not with France also, that she shall use her best exertions to prevent the importation of slaves into her dominions. This pledge, if granted, has not certainly been redeemed, although it is difficult to believe that the Spanish Government would resist or neglect the firm remonstrances of these two great powers, or even of Great Britain alone. In reply to Lord NAPIER'S remark about the habit of vessels on the Coast of Africa to to hoist the American flag as a protection against the British cruiser, and that this precaution does not protect the slaver from a visit, but exonerates her from search, Gen. CASS says the United States denies the right of the cruisers of any other power whatever to enter their vessels by force, in time of peace, and to decide the broad inquiry whether the vessel is navigated according to law, as claimed by England, and to send her in at pleasure for trial, cannot be submitted to by any independent nation without injury and dishonor. In conclusion, Mr. CASS is instructed by the President to inform Lord NAPIER that while he (the President) is determined to execute the treaty of 1842 with fidelity and efficiency, he is not prepared, under existing circumstances, to enter into any new stipulations on the subject of the African Slave-trade.

A joint resolution will shortly be introduced in Congress, extending the time for examining into the cases of the naval officers affected by the action of the Retiring Board, with a view to future action thereon by the Executive. None have yet been examined, for want of time.

XXXVth CONGRESS------First Session.

SENATE....WASHINGTON, Friday, April 23.

Mr. MORRILL'S Agricultural College bill was read twice and referred to the Committee on Public Lands.

The Private Calendar was then taken up.

The Deficiency bill was taken up and discussed, but no action was had on it.

Mr. GREEN then asked leave to make a report from the Conference Committee on the subject of Kansas.

Mr. STUART raised an objection, which provoked a long discussion, that Parliamentary law gave to the House the possession of the bill, and the Senate not having the bill before them, could not proceed to its consideration.

Mr. STUART asserted his belief that the bill was in possession of the House, but Mr. BRODERICK informed the Senate that within four minutes the bill had been laid on Mr. GREEN'S desk; a member of the House (Mr. HARRIS, of Illinois) having informed him (BRODERICK) that it was taken surreptitiously out of the House.

Mr. GREEN repudiated the surteptitiously, but said the bill was on his desk, having been brought from the Secretary's office.

After further discussion, Mr. STUART moved that the report be not received at present,

The Chair decided that Mr. GREEN had the floor to present the report, which he did with a few prefatory remarks. He said the report might not come up to the expectations of everybody, but was founded on mutual concession. It was proper that the Senate should not be dictated to by the House, nor the House by the Senate. The Committee, therefore, met in the spirit of conciliation, and tried many propositions. Whether they have arrived at the best he could not say, but it sacrifices no principle, and harmonizes with what the country demands. It opens a prospect for peace, and for the settlement of pending difficulties.

Mr. SEWARD, from the minority, namely, himself and Mr. HOWARD of Michigan, explained that the minority were of the opinion that the people of Kansas ought not, under any circumstances, to be subjected again to a vote on the Lecompton Constitution, which they have already rejected; and further, if the question be submitted, it should be submitted in a fair, just and equal manner. But this is one sided, offering admission into the Union, and donations of public lands, if they will come in under the Lecompton Constitution, but thrown them back until they have sufficient population, and offers no lands if they vote against Lecomption. Besides, the form of submission is evasive. It does not openly mention Lecompton, although it is like the vote for NAPOLEON—you can vote only Yes or No, if not for him you cannot vote for anybody else. The minority could not believe that this measure would be acceptable to the people of Kansas. They could not think it would produce that happy result the Senator from Missouri an icipated.

Mr. GREEN believed that Mr. SEWARD'S ingenious argument would mislead neither the North or South. They will see in the report a fairness that will commend itself to both.

The report was made the special order for Monday, and ordered to be printed. Adjourned.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

WASHINGTON, Friday, April 23.

Mr. J. GLANCY JONES asked unanimous consent to print, for the use of the Committee on Ways and Means, the Indian Appropriation and Indian Deficiency bills, in order to forward the public business.

Mr. GEORGE TAYLOR objected.

Mr. JONES said he wished this noted.

Mr. SAVAGE endeavored to have considered the Soldiers' Pension bill, but the House went into Committee of the Whole on private bills.

At 1 o'clock, on motion of Mr. ENGLISH, the Committee rose, when he made a report from the Committee of Conference on the Kansas bill. It is signed by Messrs. ENGLISH and STEPHENS, on the part of the House, and Messrs. GREEN and HUNTER on the part of the Senate. Messrs. SEWARD and HOWARD dissent. The report was read as follows:

Whereas, The people of Kansas did, by a convention of delegates, assembled at Lecompton on the 7th day of November, 1857, for that purpose, form for themselves a Constitution and State Government, which Constitution is Republican; and,

Whereas, At the same time and place said Convention did adopt an ordinance which asserts that Kansas when admitted as a State will have an undoubted right to tax the lands within her limits belonging to the United States, and proposes to relinquish said asserted right if certain conditions set forth in said ordinance be accepted and agreed to by the Congress of the United States; and,

Whereas, Said Constitution and ordinance have been presented to Congress by order of said Convention, and the admission of said Territory into the Union thereon as a State requested; and,

Whereas, Said ordinance is not acceptable to Congress, and it is desirable to ascertain whether the people of Kansas concur in the changes in said ordinance hereafter stated, and desire admission into the Union as a State as herein proposed, therefore

Be it enacted, &c., That the State of Kansas be and is hereby admitted into the Union on an equal footing with the original States in all respects whatever, but upon this fundamental condition precedent, namely: That the question of admission with the following proposition in lieu of the ordinance framed at Lecompton, shall be submitted to the vote of the people of Kansas, and assented to by them or the majority of the voters voting at an election to be held for that purpose, namely: That the following propositions be and the same are hereby offered to said people of Kansas for their free acceptance or rejection, which, if accepted, shall be obligatory upon the United States and upon the said State of Kansas, to wit,

First—That sections numbered sixteen and thirty-six in every township of public lands in said State, and where either of said sections, or any part thereof, has been sold or otherwise been disposed of, other lands, equivalent thereto, and as contiguous as may be, shall be granted to the said State for the use of schools.

Second—That seventy-two sections of land shall be set apart and reserved for the use and support of a State University, to be selected by the Governor of said State, subject to the approval of the Commissioner of the General Land Office, and to be appropriated and applied in such manner as the Legislature of the said State may prescribe for the purpose aforesaid, but for no other purpose.

Third—That ten entire sections of land, to be selected by the Governor of said State, in legal subdivisions, shall be granted to said State for the purpose of completing the public buildings, or for the erection of others at the seat of Government, under the direction of the Legislature thereof.

Fourth—That all the salt springs within the said State, not exceeding twelve in number, with six sections of land adjoining, or as contiguous as may be to each, shall be granted to said State for its use, the same to be selected by the Governor thereof, within one year after the admission of said State, and when so selected, to be used or disposed of on such terms, conditions and regulations as the Legislature shall direct; Provided, That no salt spring, or land, the right whereof is now vested in any individual or individuals, or which may be hereafter confirmed or adjudged to any individual or individuals, shall by this article be granted to said State.

Fifth—That five per centum of the proceeds of the sales of all public lands lying within the said State, which shall be sold by Congress after the admission of said State into the Union, after deducting all the expenses incident to the same, shall be paid to said State, for the purpose of making public roads and internal improvements, as the Legislature shall direct; Provided, That the foregoing propositions herein offered to the State of Kansas shall never interfere with the primary disposal of the lands of the United States, or with any regulations Congress may find necessary for securing title in said soil to bona fide purchasers thereof, and that no tax shall be imposed on land belonging to the United States, and that in no case shall non-resident proprietors be taxed higher than resident.

Sixth—And that said State shall never tax the lands or property of the United States.

At said election the voting shall be by ballot, and by indorsing on his ballot, as each voter may please, "proposition accepted," or "proposition rejected." Should the majority of votes be cast for "proposition accepted," the President of the United States, as soon as the fact is duly made known to him, shall announce the same by proclamation, and thereafter, and without any further proceedings on the part of Congress, the admission of the State of Kansas into the Union on an equal footing with the original States, in all respects whatever, shall be complete and absolute; and said State shall be entitled to one member in the House of Representatives in the Congress of the United States until the next census be taken by the Federal Government. But, should the majority of the votes be cast for proposition "rejected," it shall be deemed and held that the people of Kansas do not desire admission into the Union with said Constitution, under the conditions set forth in said proposition; and in that event the people of said Territory are hereby authorized and empowered to form for themselves a Constitution and State Government by the name of the State of Kansas, according to the Federal Constitution, and may elect delegates for that purpose whenever, and not before, it is ascertained, by a census duly and legally taken, that the population of said Territory equals the ratio of representation required for a member of the House of Representatives of the United States; and whenever thereafter such delegates shall assemble in convention, they shall first determine by a vote whether it is the wish of the people of the proposed State to be admitted into the Union at that time, and, if so, shall proceed to form a Constitution, and take all necessary steps for the establishment of a State Government, in conformity with the Federal Constitution, subject to such limitations and restrictions as to the mode and manner of its approval or ratification by the people of the proposed State, as they may have prescribed by law, and shall be entitled to admission into the Union as a State under such Constitution thus fairly and legally made, with or without Slavery, as said Constitution may prescribe.

SEC. 2. And be it further enacted, That for the purpose of insuring, as far as possible, that the election authorized by this act may be fair and free, the Governor, United States District-Attorney, and Secretary of the Territory of KANSAS, and the presiding officers of the two branches of the Legislature—namely, the President of the Council and Speaker of the House of Representatives, are hereby constituted a Board of Commissioners to carry into effect the provisions of this act, and to use all the means necessary and proper to that end. Any three of them shall constitute a Board, and the Board shall have power and authority to designate and establish precincts for voting, or to adopt those already established; to cause polls to be opened at such places as it may deem proper in the respective counties and election precincts of said Territory; to appoint, as judges of election at each of the several places of voting, three discreet and respectable persons, any two of whom shall be competent to act; to require the sheriffs of the several counties, by themselves or deputies, to attend the Judges at each of the places of voting for the purpose of preserving peace and good order; or the said Board may, instead of said Sheriffs and their deputies, appoint, at their discretion and in such instances as they may choose, other fit persons for the same purpose. The election hereby authorized shall continue one day only, and shall not be continued later than sundown on that day. The Board shall appoint the day for holding said election House, and said government shall announce the same by proclamation, and the day shall be as early a one as is consistent with due notice thereof to the people of said Territory, subject to the provision of this act. The said Board shall have full power to prescribe the time, manner and place of said election, and to direct the time and manner of the returns thereof; which returns shall be made to said Board, whose duty it shall be to announce the result by proclamation, and said government shall certify the same to the President of the United States without delay.

SEC. 3. And be it further enacted, That in the election hereby authorized, all white male inhabitants of said Territory, over the age of 21 years, who possess the qualifications which were required by the laws of said Territory for a legal voter at the last general election for a member of the Territorial Legislature, and none others shall be allowed to vote, and this shall be the only qualification required to entitle the citizens to the right of suffrage in said elections, and if any person not so qualified shall vote or offer to vote, or if any person shall vote more than once at said election, or shall make, or cause to be made, any false, fictitious or fraudulent returns, or shall alter or change any returns of said election, such person shall, upon conviction thereof before any court of competent jurisdiction, be kept at hard labor not less than six months, and not more than three years.

SEC. 4. And be it further enacted, That the members of the aforesaid Board of Commissioners and all persons appointed by them to carry into effect the provisions of this act, shall, before entering upon their duties, take an oath to perform faithfully the duties of their respective offices; and on failure thereof, they shall be liable and subject to the same charges and penalties as are provided in like cases under the Territorial laws.

SEC. 5. And be it further enacted, That the officers mentioned in the preceding section shall receive for their services the same compensation as is given for like services under the Territorial laws.

Mr. ENGLISH said, in view of the state of the public business, and the fact that this subject has already been more thoroughly discussed than any proposition ever before Congress, he did not propose to make any extended remarks. The Committee of Conference were deeply impressed with the responsibility resting on them. While adhering to what they believed the great principle, they had endeavored to discharge their duty in a spirit which would not endanger the passage of this great measure and hazard the peace of the country for unimportant points or unmeaning words. This report was the very best the Committee could agree on, in view of the embarrassing circumstances surrounding their action. The report pressed the admission of Kansas under certain conditions, but in this respect did not differ either from the Senate bill or the House amendment. He referred to the Lecompton ordinance to show that the proposition there was wholly inadmissible. By that, Kansas would receive 23,500,000 of acres, worth at a maxim

NEW BOOKS.

At a time when some of our most eminent and popular lecturers are engaged in enlightening lyceum audiences on the subject of the woman question, the "thoughts" of so accomplished and talented a woman as the author John Halifax, Gentleman, "about women," must attract more attention than they would be likely to do on any other occasion. Last year there was a fierce controversy waged as to whether a certain lady who called herself the Honorable Mrs. GRANVILLE WHYTE, or Miss MULOCK, were the author of the Ogilvies and John Halifax; but it has long since been satisfactorily settled that to Miss MULOCK belonged the distinguished honor of having written these admirably works. Miss MULOCK, therefore, a lady of mature experiences, of distinguished abilities, and an established reputation, is the author of A Woman's Thoughts about Women, which Messrs. RUDD & CARLETON have presented to the American public in a very commendable shape, and with the information on a fly leaf that it is an "author's edition," the meaning of which is, we presume, that a certain portion of the profits of the sale will be paid to the author; an intimation which we should be extremely happy to see on the fly-leaf of every republication of the works of every living foreign author. Part of these "thoughts," we are informed by the author, had been published in Chambers' Edinburgh Journal before they were collected into a volume, and it will be very apparent to the most careless reader, that the author designed them rather for practical suggestions for her own countrywomen, than as philosophical speculations on woman as an abstract subject. It is not woman that Miss MULOCK was thinking of, but women, and the women were those of her own class whom she had personal knowledge of. To our "Woman's Rights" people, therefore, the work will be likely to prove a disappointment, if not a positive disgust, such as the Friend of Humanity experienced when he held his immortal colloquy with the Weary Knife-grinder. There is not a particle of highfaluting philosophy in all of Miss MULOCK's thoughts; and she treats her subject in an eminently rational and commonsense manner. In respect to the political rights of women, our author says, with an air of cool sagacity which must be terribly exasperating to the woman's rights party on this side of the Atlantic:

"Who that ever listened for two hours to the verbose confused inanities of a Ladies' Committee, would immediately go and give his vote for a female House of Commons? or who, on the receipt of a lady's letter of business—I speak of the average—would henceforth desire to have our courts of justice stocked with matronly lawyers, and our Colleges thronged by

'Sweet girl-graduates with their golden hair?'

As for finance, in its various branches—if you pause to consider the extreme difficulty there always is in balancing Mrs. Smith's housekeeping-book, or Miss Smith's quarterly allowance, I think, my dear Paternal Smith, you need not be much afraid lest this loud acclaim for 'women's rights' should ever end in pushing you from your stools, in counting-house, college, or elsewhere."

This is terrible, it is true, but it is its truth that makes it so. Though the capacity of women for legislative or mercantile duties may be doubted, yet whoever doubted the capacity of women for falling in love? But even this peculiarly feminine weakness, or strength, as it may be considered, Miss MULOCK is rather disposed to pooh-pooh!

"'Many think they fall in love, when in fact they are only idle'—is one of the truest sayings of that great wise bore, Imlac, in Rasselas, and it has been proved by many a shipwrecked life, of girls especially. This 'falling in love' being usually a mere delusion of the fancy, and not the real thing at all, the object is generally unattainable or unworthy. Papa is displeased, mamma somewhat shocked and scandalized; it is a 'foolish affair,' and no matrimonial results ensue.

* * * * Gradually this mood wears out; she learns to regard 'love' as folly, and turns her whole hope and aim to—matrimony! Matrimony in the abstract; not the man, but any man—any person who will snatch her out of the dullness of her life, and give her something really to live for, something to fill up the hopeless blank of idleness into which her days are gradually sinking."

But these are British, not American women, about whom the author of John Halifax is thinking. We do believe that falling in love in this part of the world is not, with due respect to Miss MULOCK, "a mere delusion of the fancy." All love-matches, we do most seriously believe, are not bogus, if we may be pardoned for using so ungraceful an epithet in connection with so tender a subject. But Miss MULOCK only means that falling in love, with most young ladies, is a sort of womanly necessity, because they have nothing better to do, and she says, with a solemn seriousness which can hardly fail to touch the feelings of many of the class to whom she addresses herself:

"Young ladies, 'tis worth a grave thought—what, if called away at eighteen, twenty or thirty, the most of you would leave behind you when you die? Much embroidery, doubtless; various pleasant, kindly, illegible letters; a moderate store of good deeds; and a cart-load of good intentions. Nothing else—save your name on a tombstone, or lingering for a few more years in family or friendly memory. 'Poor dear ——! what a nice lively girl she was!' For any benefit accruing through you to your generation, you might as well never have lived at all"

If that celebrated young lady, Miss Flora McFlimsey, be still living in Madison-square, we would advise her by all means to read the whole of the chapter, entitled "Something to Do," from which we have made these extracts. In the chapter on "Female Professions" our author is not so full and distinct in her thoughts as might have been expected; but, upon one of the professions she is clear enough. In England the governess is an institution, and most young women of good family and fair education, who find themselves under the necessity of looking out for their own support, naturally turn first to the profession of a governess. One-half the stories of English life have for their subject the sufferings and trials of the governess; it is the main ingredient in the fictions of the Bronte family, as well as in the real history of those marvelous sisters. But Miss MULOCK does not think favorably of governesses. She says:

"If, in the most solemn sense, not one woman in five thousand is fit to be a mother, not two out of that number, we may safely say, are fit to be governesses."

This is a terribly severe judgment. Even that sarcastic villain, Iago, was more generous in his opinion of the sex But Miss MULOCK is more severe in her thoughts about women than any man would dare to be, or at least would dare to think aloud. We once heard a celebrated lawyer declare, and attempt to prove, that women had no sense of honor, and Miss MULOCK goes a step beyond and says:

"I am afraid it is from some natural deficiency in the constitution of our sex that it is so difficult to teach us justice. It certainly was a mistake to make that admirable virtue a female; and even then the allegorist seems to have found it necessary to bandage her eyes. No; kindliness, unselfishness, charity, come to us by nature; but I wish I could see more of my sisters learning and practicing what is far more difficult and far less attractive—common justice, especially towards one another."

We are getting on most discouragingly. Women cannot fall in love; they are not fit for mothers; have no capacity for governesses; no talent for business; are deficient in the sense of justice, and have no mercy for each other. We are almost afraid to gather any more of these thoughts about women. They become appalling Think of this:

"Should it ever come to a marriage—[this is from the chapter on Gossip]—and the wonder is, considering all these things, that any love-affair ever does come to that climax at all, or that any honest-hearted, delicate-minded young people, ever have the courage to indulge the world by an open attachment or engagement—heavens and earth! how it is talked about!

Is not a little episode like this at the root of nearly all the family feuds, lost friendships, cut acquaintanceships, so pitifully rife in this world? It is the women who are at the bottom of it all, who, in the narrowness or blankness of their daily lives, are glad to catch at any straw of interest—especially the unmarried, the idle, the rich and the childless."

On the subject of "old maids" we may regard Miss MULOCK as an authority, and have a right to look for a softening of her severe thoughts. But, look at this:

"There never was an unhappy old maid yet who would not have been equally unhappy as a wife—and more guilty, for she would have made two people miserable instead of one."

She is clearly not of the opinion that "education" is beneficial to women, and fully coincides with Sir Anthony Absolute on the subject of teaching girls to read.

"I do solemnly aver, having seen more than one generation of young girls grow up into womanhood, that the fairest and best specimens of our sex that I have ever known have been among those who have never gone to school, or scarcely ever had a regular governess."

This is alike severe upon the system of female education in England, and upon the female nature. In corroboration of the opinion of the legal gentleman to which we just now alluded, we may take the following:

"And here is one accusation which I most sorrowfully bring against woman, as being much more guilty than man. We can keep a secret—ay, against all satire. I protest we can—while the confider remains our friend; but if that tie ceases, pop! out it comes!"

It is not to ladies alone that Miss MULOCK restricts herself; she bestows an extremely sharp chapter upon female servants. If there are any of that numerous class who read these remarks, we particularly invite their attention to these passages:

"And yet the servant is often very unjust, too. Cook, who has only to dress the dinner, and neither to work for it nor pay for it, turns up her nose at Missis' 'meanness,' i. e., displeasure at waste or extravagance—cook, who, if any crash came, has only to look out for another place; while Missis has her five children, whose little mouths must be filled, and little bodies must be clothed, and 'Master,' whom it breaks her heart to see coming in from the city, haggard, tired and cross—a crossness he cannot help, poor man!—or sitting down with a pitiful patience, sick and sad, almost wishing, save for her and her children, that he could lay his head on her shoulder and die! What does cook in the kitchen, fat and comfortable, know of all these things—of the agonized struggle for position and character—nay mere bread—which makes the days and nights of thousands of the professional classes one long battle for life?

Also, the pretty housemaid, who has her regular work and periodical holiday, with her 'young man' coming faithfully on Sundays, about whom, should he turn out false, she rarely makes a fuss, but quickly takes up with another; she being essentially practical, and mental suffering being happily out of her line. Little she guesses of all the conflicts, torments, and endurances which fall to the lot of natures whom a different cultivation, if not a finer organization, has rendered more alive to another sort of trouble—that anguish of spirit which is worse than any bodily pain. Little she knows, when she comes in singing to dust the parlor, of many a cruel scene transacted there: or of many an hour of mortal agony, bitter as death, yet sharpened by the full consciousness of youth and life, which has been spent in the pretty room, outside which she grumbles so, because 'miss will keep her door locked, and it'll be dinner time afore ever a body can get the beds made.'"

Notwithstanding the severity of the remarks we have quoted, the work abounds in kindness and genuine good advice for women; but it must be borne in mind that the society to which the author has been accustomed is essentially different from American society, and her "thoughts" must be taken with very considerable allowance in adapting them to practical use in this country.

The United States and Cuba, by JAMES M. PHILLIPPO, is the title of a closely-printed volume of near five hundred pages, which has just been published in London, and by SHELDON, BLAKEMAN & Co., of New-York. The author was a Baptist preacher in the Island of Jamaica, and he appends two commendatory notes to his volume from two of our most eminent Baptist clergymen, who, we imagine, had not read the work when they wrote them He informs us in his preface that his motive in publishing the book was because he has been "particularly struck with the fact, that, although histories of and tours through the United States are so numerous, no book existed, so far as he was able to ascertain, that could be put into the hands of any one anxious to acquire general information on the United States, conveying such knowledge as he would naturally desire." There is, it must be confessed, a good deal of knowledge about the United States in the volume, but it is arranged in an extremely loose and inaccurate manner, even for a traveler. Mr. PHILLIPPO has the highest possible opinion of "our country," and is not excelled by any patriot among us in his prophetic views of our future greatness. He looked upon us through a rose-tinted medium, and found everything to admire, except Slavery, from New-Orleans to Boston. His mistakes of a topographical nature are as amusing as they are numerous, and if any emigrant should adopt him for a guide, he will find it a difficult matter to make his way after landing here. We do not discover from Mr. PHILLIPPO's volume at what particular period he traveled through the States, but his preface is dated November, 1857, and he says, in alluding to Washington, that "The leading men in the Senate, as at present constituted, are CASS, CRITTENDEN, BENTON, HUNTER, MASON, SOULE, ATHERTON, DOUGLAS, RUSHE, and SUMNER, with CLAYTON, SEWARD, EVERETT, PEACE, DIX, ON, JONES, BADGER, TRUMAN, SMITH, and GEYER.' This remarkable assemblage will give a pretty good idea of Mr. PHILLIPPO's general correctness, where names, dates, persons, places and distances are concerned. The present Chief Magistrate of the nation, he informs his readers, is "George Buchanan," which comes rather nearer the mark than he usually does. Another remarkable piece of information which we learn from him is that a young lady of Nantucket recently discovered "a new planet." He means, of course, the discovery of a new comet by Miss MITCHELL; but he does not appear to be aware of any difference between comets and planets. New-York almost struck Mr. PHILLIPPO blind with its splendors. In approaching the great City from the sea, he informs us that "the sloping shores reminded him of the banks of the Isis (!) or the Clyde;" and, notwithstanding the fact of it being a misty morning, he saw through the Narrows the "Islands of Blackwell, Governor's and Bedloe's." The land, he says, is "low and level, with the exception of a few hills, viz., the landmark of Montuck on which stands a light-house, and Hampsted," &c. "The province of which New-York City is the capital," says Mr. PHILLIPPO, is "three hundred miles from north to south, and three hundred and fifty miles from east to west.' "Fort Diamond and Governor's Island," we are told, "are at the entrance of the Narrows, situated between Long and Staten Islands on the eastern shore. The latter island contains a battery that defends the pass to the City, surrounded by grounds of considerable extent, designated the Castle Gardens, intersected by walks, and ornamented by shrubs, trees and flowers, for the recreation of the citizens." "Superiority or splendor of furniture," says the Rev. gentleman, "is not one of those adjuncts of wealth and station which the Americans in general take pride in displaying." We suspect he did not "put up" at what he calls the "Hotel Nicolas," and, after reading the following, a doubt will arise in most minds whether the Rev. Mr. PHILLIPPO was ever in this country at all: "In about the centre of Broadway," he says, "and about half a mile from the Battery, stand the City Hall, the Merchants' Exchange, Hall of Justice, New-York Hospital, and Post-Offices. The street terminates at the upper end in a handsome square, with the Governor's house in front, ornamented with public walks, gardens and pleasure grounds. The ferries cross the North River to Whichawken and Hobokin, where also, as at Brooklyn and Staten Island, it is the wealthy who mostly reside. At the latter place are the Elysian Fields," &c. O, Mr. PHILLIPPO! But what most surprises us is to find the name of a respectable New-York publishing firm on the title page of the volume, and commendatory notes from the Rev. Dr. WILLIAMS, of New-York, and the Rev. Dr. WAYLAND, of Brown University.

We have received from Mr. JOHN BARTLETT, of Cambridge, Mass., well and favorably known less from the number than from the excellence of his publications, the prospectus of a new and important periodical, to be entitled the Mathematical Monthly—to be issued at Cambridge under the supervision of the office of the Nautical Almanac, and to be devoted to the actual interests and the steady advance of mathematical science in all its departments. It is not intended to be a repository of abstruse problems, or more abstruse disquisitions, interesting only to the comparatively small number of the mathematical elect, but is meant to cover the whole ground of mathematical study, as well as of mathematical knowledge—to attract and enlighten the learners, as well as to gratify the doctors of the mysteries of number and proportion. It is unnecessary for us to point out to the intelligent reader how vast is the field of the relations of mathematical science in this country. Of the necessity of covering that field by just such a periodical as the Monthly, adepts more competent than ourselves have already spoken. Professors BACHE, AGASSIZ, BARTLETT, BOND, CASWELL, CHAUVENET, GOULD, HENRY, OLMSTED, PIERCE, and others, comprising a great majority of the known and proficient scientific men of the country, from Maine to Georgia, have given their testimony to the value of the project, and the capacity of the projectors. Many of these gentlemen have promised their aid as collaborators; and we can see no good reason to anticipate anything less than a brilliant career of usefulness and success for this new and most timely journal.

General Mouraviefi.

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

General MOURAVIEFF, Governor of Nijnyi Norvgorod, whose highminded speech you comment upon, is not the conqueror of Kars, but one of his cousins. Several members of this family serve their country in both civil and military positions, and the name of MOURAVIEFF has, for a score of years, been prominent before the Russian people as embodying intelligence, activity, energy, pure and highminded patriotism. Yours, GUROWSKI.

The Cincinnati Gazette, of April 21, says: "Yesterday an effort was made to ascertain, by actual count, the quantity of bulk shoulders and sides in the market, and the result was an aggregate of 151,000,000 lbs., being an excess of 6,000,000 lbs., as compared with the corresponding date last year."

The Cincinnati Price Current, of April 21, contains a statement of the exports of provisions from the United States from Jan. 1 to about the 1st of April. The aggregates reduced to lbs. compare as follows:

|---|---|
| 1857 | lbs. 68,219,900 |
| 1858 | 38,551,550 |
| Falling off | 29,765,350 |

This decrease is equal to about 200,000 hogs, but as an offset, we have the deficit in the stocks in the country on the 1st of November, the latter being equal to at least 300,000 hogs. Taking the increase in the hog crop, and putting the figures together, the result is as follows:

| | Head. |
|---|---|
| Excess in crop of hogs | 380,000 |
| Decrease in foreign exports, equal to | 200,000 |
| Total | 580,000 |
| Deduct deficit in old stocks | 300,000 |
| Net excess | 280 000 |

This exhibit, as regards the net excess, is based upon the supposition, that the home consumption has been equal to that of last year.

NEW-YORK, SATURDAY, APRIL 24, 1858.

Removal of the Times.

On the 1st of May the office of the TIMES will be removed to the new TIMES BUILDING, situated upon Park-row, Spruce-street and Nassau-street. The increased facilities which will there be afforded for our increasing business will enable us to remedy existing defects, and to make important improvements in the management of the paper. The new TEN-CYLINDER PRESSES which Messrs. HOE & Co. are erecting in our new Vaults will prevent, we trust, the occasional delay in the morning delivery of the TIMES to City subscribers, which has resulted from the inadequacy of our present machinery to the work required of it. We shall take measures, also, to provide for the increased pressure of Advertisements upon our columns, which has prevented us from giving as great a variety of reading matter as it is our intention to supply.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

The Cunard steamship Canada, with three days' later intelligence from Europe, arrived at Halifax yesterday morning. Later news from India, of a highly important character, has been received in London. The grand attack upon Lucknow, for which there has been so much preparation, had been made by Sir COLIN CAMPBELL. The British Commander had such an overwhelming force on the occasion, and so thoroughly organized, that the Sepoy rebels, though well aware that they were fighting for life, were utterly incapable of making any prolonged resistance. They fled from their strongholds in the greatest disorder, and, being hotly pursued by the British Cavalry, were slaughtered in great numbers. At latest dates, the British were in full possession of the rebellious city of Lucknow, and the reconquest of Oude may be considered as an accomplished fact. The British Parliament was not in session when the Canada sailed, and political news from England is unimportant. We learn that the Grand Jury had found a true bill for conspiracy to murder against ALLSOP, BARNARD and others, accused of being implicated in the attempt of the 14th of January. Important intelligence reaches us from France. It is reliably reported that the Emperor is making warlike preparations on an extensive scale. A Commission has been appointed to examine and report upon the best system for placing the commercial ports of the Empire in a state of defence, and a levy of French seamen is said to be going on in the most complete and strictest manner.

In the United States Senate yesterday, the Agricultural College bill was read twice and referred to the Committee on Public Lands. The Deficiency bill was discussed, but no action was had. Mr. GREEN then asked leave to make a report from the Kansas Conference Committee. Objection was made that, by Parliamentary law, the matter should be first acted upon in the House, but the report was finally made the special order for Monday, and ordered to be printed. In the House, after some unimportant business, Mr. ENGLISH made a report from the Committee of Conference on the Kansas bill. The character of the report has been made known in advance through the columns of the TIMES. Mr. ENGLISH, after explaining that it was the very best that could be agreed upon by the Committee, asked that it be printed, and that its further consideration be pos poned until to-day. Mr. HOWARD, of Michigan, suggested a postponement until Thursday of next week. Finally, Mr. HILL, of Georgia, moved to postpone further consideration of the subject until the second Monday in May, which motion was agreed to by 108 against 105, and pending a motion to reconsider the vote, and to lay that motion on the table, the House adjourned.

Papers from the City of Mexico to the 11th inst. have been received at New-Orleans. PAEZ and his Ministry were at Colima, and Gen. PARRODI was at Lages. It was reported that the latter intended issuing a manifesto in vindication of his course.

The trial of IRA STOUT, for the murder of LITTLES, at Rochester, was concluded yesterday, and the case given to the Jury, who, after an hour's deliberation, returned a verdict of "Guilty of Murder."

Yesterday, in the Court of General Sessions, the libel case of BUSTEED vs. CARR was again brought before Recorder BARNARD. Mr. CARR, with his counsel, Ex-Judge WHITING, was present. Mr. BUSTEED was not present. Mr. JOHN GRAHAM addressed the Court at great length, and in indignant terms, relative to the course pursued by Judge WHITING on Wednesday last, describing it as one of the most extraordinary scenes ever known in a court of justice. Ex-Judge WHITING replied in bitter language, which again produced a scarifying attack from Mr. GRAHAM. The Recorder preserved the dignity of the Court in the best manner possible, and finally adjourned the trial till Monday, the 10th of May, with the understanding that it must then be brought on, or the complaint be dismissed.

In the Court of Special Sessions yesterday, MCCARTHY withdrew his complaint against HINES and BRIGGS, for the assault committed on him at the corner of Broadway and Howard-street, as was alleged, at the investigation of MARCUS CICERO STANLEY. Thus this charge, which has so long occupied the public attention, ingloriously terminates.

The St. George's Society celebrated its 72d anniversary yesterday by religious services in Dr. MORGAN'S Church in the morning, and by a banquet at the Metropolitan Hotel in the evening. At the latter speeches were made by Lord NAPIER and Baron VON GEROLT, the Prussian Minister.

The Methodist Conference resumed the debate on the Slavery question yesterday. The substitute of the Rev. Dr. BANGS was voted down and the original resolutions were carried. The Conference adjourned sine die in the afternoon. The next Session will be held at New-Haven.

In the case of HENEY vs. the Roman Catholic Benevolent Society, the plaintiff was non-suited yesterday, by Judge BROWN, in the Brooklyn Circuit. It was proved that the plaintiff was naturalized in November, 1848, and that the deceased died several months previous, so that the plaintiff could not be his heir. The property, valued at over $1,000,000, involved in this case, remains, therefore, in the possession of the defendants.

The General Markets yesterday were quiet, but firm, for Cotton, in the absence of the details of the news per Canada. Flour was moderately dealt in, at about former rates. Wheat and Corn were in request, buyers having had any existing advantage. The speculative movements in Pork continued, and prices advanced. The transactions in Lard and Beef were to a fair extent, at buoyant rates. The auction sale of Coffee resulted very satisfactorily. Sugars and Rice were in good demand, at full quotations. There was more activity in Spanish Tobacco. No important change occurred in Freights.

The Fall of Lucknow.

The lieges of St. George had legitimate cause last night for waxing jubilant about "the festive board." For the steamship Canada sent them in terse telegraphic terms the glad tidings for which England had been waiting so long and with so ardent a thirst. The story is yet to reach us in the fullness of its details, but the essential fact, that between the 12th and the 18th of March Sir COLIN CAMPBELL, at the head of one of the finest armaments which India has ever seen, and as the crowning step of a long career of victories skillfully prepared and as skillfully improved, attacked, stormed and carried the Sepoy entrenchments at Lucknow, has been vouchsafed at last to the rather impatient expectation of the British public. The utter dispersion of the native forces was effected, it would seem, with very small loss on the part of the British; the Sepoys having apparently become quite disorganized and hopeless even before the assault was actually delivered. They scattered themselves in flight over the country as far as Sir COLIN's combinations allowed them so to do, and were hotly pursued by the artillery and the cavalry.

That any considerable portion of them should eventually escape, is extremely improbable. Ever since the capture of Delhi, Lucknow has been the point of convergence for all the Sepoy bands; and from all sections of India the opponents of the British power have been gathering themselves up into that heart of Oude. As we have already, on a previous occasion, shown, Sir COLIN CAMPBELL has so conducted his campaign as gradually to convert this voluntary rendezvous of the insurrection into a Bastile, from which no escape was to be left to the Sepoy armies save through a complete victory over their pursuers. To the Northwest the only outlets from Lucknow lead away towards the deadly morasses that skirt the base of the Himalayas. To the West, the issue is blocked by the British post of Cawnpore with its outlying dependencies. To the North, the road to the Ganges is commanded by Furruckabad, also held by the English troops under CHAMBERLAIN. Eastward from Lucknow stretches the natural sally of the defeated Oudians in the direction of Fyzabad, the ancient capital of the realm, sacred to the Oudian as Edinburg to the Scotchman, and haunted with as many traditions of the infancy of the Nation as Tours in France or Toledo in Spain. But before Fyzabad lies the Nepaulese JUNG BAHADAR, with his Ghoorkas; and the junction, after several successful skirmishes of Brigadier FRANKS, who advanced by the Fyzabad road, with Sir COLIN CAMPBELL, would seem to show that the English have control of that section of the country also, or can very easily acquire it. Moreover, Sir JAMES OUTRAM, with 6,000 men had left his position at the Alumbagh before the 12th of March, and put himself in a position to assail the flank of the retreating Sepoys if they should move towards Fyzabad. Hemmed in thus on every side, and pushed hard by the implacable bayonet, the only formidable body of insurgents left in India has doubtless by this time been completely cut to pieces, and one of the most sudden, furious and fearful conflicts which the war-worn earth has ever witnessed, must now be rapidly drawing to an end.

Of the effect which these final successes of the English in India are likely to have upon the game of European politics, it is hardly necessary for us to speak at length. Nothing tends more to the keeping of the peace between individuals or nations than the conviction that breaking the peace is likely to be a dangerous business; and so much of the diminished prestige of their military character (for the loss of which the English people are largely indebted to their own pet Thunderer, the London Times) has now been restored by the valor, promptitude, endurance and warlike skill which they have shown in the East, that the invasion of England will hardly be discussed as jauntily for the next few months as it has been since the 14th of January. Great Britain embarrassed with an uncertain and costly struggle in the Indies, and Great Britain flushed with triumphs won by the outposts of her empire and in the face of overwhelming odds, are not to be treated with on precisely identical terms; and if any power in Europe shall have present cause to lament the victories of Sir COLIN CAMPBELL, that power will probably be Austria. If NAPOLEON must fasten a quarrel upon some one, the chances are fast multiplying against the House of Hapsburg. All the moderation and good sense of the arch-Duke MAXIMILIAN are required to keep the rising discontent of his Lombardo-Venitian Government within the bounds of civil order; and men already begin to whisper strange things of theatrical coups d'état planned at Paris to explode beyond the Alps.

But, however the quelling of the Indian revolt may affect for the moment the politics of Europe, we in America look upon it with unfeigned satisfaction. No power on earth can so well afford as we to see England triumphant in Asia, for no power has so little to fear as we from her triumphs. We are beyond the reach of any influences from England, save those which it is as good for her to expend as for us to receive. And in one aspect of the case our interest in the defeat of the Sepoys and in the extraordinary exertions of pure generic force by which it has been accomplished, is altogether peculiar. The recent struggle in India has been virtually a struggle of races. The Hindoo and the European have been contending there, with every possible advantage of discipline, equipment and numbers conceded to the Asiatic, and the European has come out victorious from the dreadful ordeal. Might not our brethren of the Southern States take a lesson from this spectacle? They have always refused to discuss with us the economies of their social state, because, as they have alleged, the discussion of such themes could not be permitted without danger in the midst of a vast slave population. And no man has ever spent any considerable time at the South, without discovering that the Southern people are haunted with a perpetual, though silent, horror of insurrection and of servile war. Will they not admit that, in the presence of the Sepoy war of 1857, these fears do not become a great Anglo-Saxon people which holds the negro at a disadvantage beyond all comparison with the position of the Hindoo? The race of the defenders of Lucknow and the captors of Delhi has not degenerated in the New World, and the Southern people do themselves a terrible injustice when they obstinately close their eyes upon the difficulties of a question which needs only to be boldly and honestly faced to be solved into a peace which compromises and evasions can never win.

The Kansas Compromise.

The Conference Committee made its report yesterday in Congress upon the Kansas question; and we have at last some authentic statement of its character. In its general scope and object it is sufficiently unstatesmanlike and discreditable to be in keeping with most of the action of Congress upon this subject; while in the practical effect of its provisions we fail to find any of the gigantic and hideous dangers which have been charged upon it. We cannot see that it differs very much, in any essential particular, from the Crittenden amendment,—and our principal surprise is, that the ultra opponents of that amendment should accept of this bill as a substitute for it.

The Lecomptonites in Congress have declared, over and over again, that they would never consent to the submission of the Lecompton Constitution to the vote of the people of Kansas. The English bill dodges this objection by submitting the Land-grant ordinance only to the popular vote,—but declaring at the same time that the vote upon that ordinance shall decide the question of admission, and so be practically a vote upon the Constitution also. If the ordinance is accepted, then the Constitution is accepted: if the ordinance is rejected, then the Constitution is rejected also. In point of fact, therefore, the Constitution is just as really submitted to the popular vote as the ordinance itself. Practically, the people will vote upon it just as truly as if it were submitted to them in so many words. If they wish to reject it, they have the opportunity of doing so. The question is not put fraudulently, as it was in the October election —"Constitution with land," or "Constitution without land,"—but "Land and the Constitution," or "No land and no Constitution." All that the Lecompton party has gained by this compromise is the verbal pretence that the Constitution is not submitted. They make believe not submit it, as children do in play,—though the pretext is purely and entirely a cheat. If GREEN, HUNTER and their associates think they can thus save the point of honor, it is fortunate for the country that their honor is so easily satisfied. They take words and concede facts. In form, the Lecompton Constitution may not be submitted by this bill:—but in fact, it is submitted and will be accepted or rejected, as the majority of the people of Kansas may vote on the one side or the other. This was the essential principle of the Crittenden amendment, and constitutes the main demand of the opponents of the Lecompton Constitution. They insisted that this instrument should not be forced upon the people of Kansas, but submitted to their vote:—and in spite of the paltry and unmanly trick by which this demand is professedly evaded, it is practically and in fact conceded to its full extent. The game of this bill is merely thimble-rigging applied to legislation. Mr. ENGLISH holds the thimble, and the Lecomptonites are quite sure the submission-pea is not under it.

It is quite true that the submission is put in a very questionable and objectionable shape. It is accompanied by what has very much the appearance of a bribe. All these lands are offered to the people of Kansas if they adopt the Lecompton Constitution; and if they reject it, they lose the lands. But it is worth while to consider that this provision is not peculiar to this bill. As we showed, yesterday, precisely the same grants of land were made to the State by the Crittenden bill,—and the grant was, in precisely the same way, contingent upon the acceptance of the Lecompton Constitution. In fact they are and must be always made in this form, when they are made at all. The grants of land are to the State, and become valid, therefore, only when by the adoption of the Constitution, the people of the Territory make it a State. They could not be made in any other way. The lands cannot be given to Kansas while it remains a Territory,—for it lacks the sovereignty essential to their ownership. If given at all, they must be given contingently—upon the Territory's becoming a State. We do not see, therefore, that any just or well-founded exception can be taken to this provision of the English bill. It is neither unjust nor unusual. It has been adopted once, in precisely its present form, by the Anti-Lecompton majority in the House of Representatives.

The most objectionable feature of this Compromise bill is that which excludes Kansas from the Union for an indefinite time, if her people do not accept the Lecompton Constitution. As a general rule it may be very well to provide that no State shall be admitted into the Union until her population is sufficient to entitle her to one Representative. We should be very glad to see this principle established and rigorously applied. But there is no reason for applying it to Kansas after voting upon Lecompton, which is not equally valid before. There is no reason why they should be admitted without the required population under that Constitution, more than under any other. If permitted to do so in the one case, they should be in the other also. There is no room to doubt that the real object and motive of this provision is to coerce the people of Kansas into adopting the Lecompton Constitution;—and this motive is flagitious, corrupt and personally as well as politically discreditable to the authors of the scheme. It is a gross invasion of popular rights thus to attempt to influence an election by punishing a community for voting against the wish of a dominant party.

Action upon this bill was postponed yesterday until the second Tuesday in May. Its passage is by no means certain. We should not be at all surprised to see a change of front, on the part both of friends and foes, before the time for acting upon it arrives. Nor do we believe its passage would render probable the adoption of the Lecompton Constitution by the people of Kansas.

STRICT CONSTRUCTIONISTS.—We should like to know what has become of the old "Strict Construction" party which made so much noise but a few years since in the Southern States. Senator MASON, of Virginia, who would certainly belong to it if there were any such party still in existence, recently offered the following resoluion in the Senate of the United States:

"Be it enacted, &c., That for the purpose of adjusting differences between the United States and the Republic of Paraguay, in connection with the attack on the United States steamer Water Witch, and with other matters referred to in the annual message of the President, he be and hereby is authorized to adopt such measures and use such force as in his judgment may be necessary and advisable in the event of a refusal of just satisfaction by the Government of Paraguay."

This is a simple, naked proposition to authorize the President to declare and wage war at discretion, against one of the nations of South America. The Constitution is very explicit in devolving this fearful responsibility exclusively upon Congress. Mr. MASON proposes to confer it upon the President. We should not be greatly surprised to find some of these ultra Southern State-Rights men by and by proposing to devolve all legislation upon the President, and authorize him to do whatever he happens to think "necessary and advisable" upon all subjects. What an immense amount of labor might thus be saved!

THE KANSAS QUESTION.

Whose Victory?—Arguments of Anti-Lecompton Democrats—Improbability of a Fair Election in Kansas—Danger of Renewed Broils—New Party Combinations—Final Severance of Douglas from the Democracy—Possible Union of Wise, Bell and Crittenden with the Republicans.

Correspondence of the New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Friday, April 23, 1858.

Those Democrats who have hitherto opposed the Lecompton Instrument on the ground that it was neither formed nor adopted by the people of Kansas, and who now intend to accept the proposition of Mr. ENGLISH, deny that the latter is an Administration triumph. They assert that, on the question which has, during this session, divided the Democracy, the Executive has been defeated and the minority section prevails. The principle was, according to this argument, the right and duty of submitting the Constitution to a popular vote; that point, they maintain, is carried in favor of the dissenting Democrats by the submission of the ordinance. A vote upon the ordinance or land grant, is to be a vote on or against the so-called Lecompton Constitution. All opposed to it will vote no, on the ordinance, and all in favor of the Constitution will vote yea, on the ordinance. If a majority prefer the Constitution, the ordinance will be adopted; if a majority oppose it, both will be rejected.

There is, no doubt, some force in this argument but the question then occurs, why not submit the Constitution alone and in due form to that judgment of the people? The answer is this: An unfortunate controversy exists as to whether Congress has a right to go behind the Convention and its action, which denied submission. More than three fourths of the Democratic Party in Congress say the Convention had the right to withhold it, and they also contend that the only disputed question in the Constitution has been submitted. It has become necessary to compromise that difference. The minority of the party in the House and Senate cannot enforce the reference back to a popular vote of the Constitution in name, but we can attain the same thing by causing the popular rejection or approval of the instrument to be expressed through a vote on an ordinance that will become a supplemental part of it. We sacrifice the shadow while we gain the substance. The Administration saves only the point of honor and surrenders to the minority on the real issue.

The truth of this pretension depends upon the intention of the heretofore Anti-Lecompton Democrats to have a fair election. Do they intend to secure such a one? That is doubtful. In the first place, the control of the election is placed wholly within the power of the Executive. It will be conducted by a Board consisting of three Federal office-holders and two Republican heads of the Kansas Legislature. Now, Mr. BUCHANAN has just removed a man from the post of Marshal of the Territory, for the very reason that he would not connive at, and would not assist in consummating the enormous and palpable frauds attempted in Johnson and McGee Counties, in October, 1857, and actually perpetrated on Dec. 21, and Jan. 4, following. Will the President constitute the new Board fairly? Has he done anything in Kansas fairly?

It may be that the Federal Army and the volunteers, and the larger army of camp followers, in Kansas, may overawe the inhabitants and prevent a conflict from the disparity of force; but the terms under which the election is ordered, are eminently well calculated to produce sanguinary tumults. They are likely to arise under grave, well founded doubts of what are the election laws of Kansas. The District-Attorney, who is ex-officio one of the Board of Election Commissioners, gave an opinion last Fall which, if enforced, would have disfranchised nearly the whole body of Free-State inhabitants. He will certainly renew that opinion, especially when he remembers that Gov. WALKER and Secretary STANTON were removed for opposing it, among other causes. But there is yet a more serious source of trouble. The Lecompton Constitution virtually abolished the Territorial Legislature, providing that none of its laws should go into effect if that Constitution were adopted by Congress. Does not this proposition take effect upon the conditional acceptance of the Constitution? I have no doubt that it will be so decided. In that case the old and offensive statutes of election will be restored, under which the Free-State men so often refused to vote. These questions are likely to produce fearful confusion and disorder.

Upon the condition of parties and the relations of party leaders the proposed measure of Mr. ENGLISH will excite a most powerful influence. It will separate Mr. DOUGLAS and his immediate friends forever from the Administration and the Democracy. Already a Democratic Douglas and an Administration Convention has been held in Illinois. A distinguished member of the delegation, not the Senator, declared to-day that the Republicans had only to behave with prudence and they would make Illinois as reliable an Anti-Slavery State as Vermont. The Anti-Lecompton branch of the Democracy, which is only another name for the Anti-Southern wing of it, must now of course join the Republicans. Who will be their representative and candidate in 1860 is not yet a question. It may be Mr. DOUGLAS, or Col. FREMONT, or Mr. SEWARD, or Gov. CHASE, or Mr. BRODERICK. The choice will not be confined to Old Line Whigs, nor to Republicans of 1856. The frontiers of the party are extended, and are wide enough to take in all sincere converts. Mr. BANKS, who voted in the first stage for the repeal of the Missouri Compromise, was not excluded in 1854, nor will GOV. WISE, Mr. CRITTENDEN or Mr. BELL be excluded now.

By the passage of this bill, too, in which Lecompton prevails under the name of a compromise, a fearful schism and commotion are averted at the South. This disunion faction of that section were looking to the total defeat of the pending scheme as the excuse and the occasion for a secession movement which would have brought them into direct collision with all the conservative elements of the Slave States. The conflict would have been long and sharp, but the disunionists would have been crushed forever. As things have turned, that struggle will be postponed.

THE SUSQUEHANNA.—The cases of fever sent to the Marine Hospital from the frigate Susquehanna are fairly convalescing. No new cases have broken out since the crew were landed; nor have any died since Thursday last. The mass of the crew and officers, who were sent on shore, Sunday last, will be permitted to leave Quarantine this morning, but will be allowed to take with them only a small amount of personal baggage, which is thoroughly clean, and which has not been exposed to the malaria of the ship's hold. The dozen shipkeepers, who were not landed till Thursday last, will not be liberated from Quarantine till Monday or Tuesday morning. PARKER CROWELL, Acting-Quartermaster on the steamer Arctic, now lying at the lower Quarantine anchorage as a guard to the Susquehanna, deserted on Thursday night in one of the life-boats of the Arctic. A warrant has been issued by the Health Officer for his arrest, and efforts are being made by the Police and others to find the life boat.

Anniversary Celebration of the St. George's Society.

SPEECH OF THE PRESIDENT.

Addresses of Lord Napier and Baron Von Gerolt.

Yesterday was the seventy-second anniversary of the foundation of the St. George's Society, of this City. The day was celebrated with becoming honors. In the morning, in St. Thomas' Church, religious services appropriate to the event were solemnized. The congregation was large and fashionable, including many Episcopal clergymen and several of the more distinguished of the Society's guests. The sermon was delivered by the Rev. Dr. MORGAN, and the services were conducted by the Rev. Dr. VAN KLEEK, the Rt. Rev. Dr. POTTER assisting thereat.

THE DINNER.

In the evening the annual banquet was given in the Metropolitan Hotel, and in éclat is said to have surpassed many previous celebrations.

On either side of Dr. J. C. BEALS, the President, sat the following invited guests: GULIAN C. VERPLANCK, of the St. Nicholas Society; Mr. BONNEY, of the New-England Society; ADAM NORRIE, of the St. Andrews'; Mr. MILES, of the St. Davids; Mr. BELL, of the St. Patrick's; Lord NAPIER, the British Minister; Baron VON GEROLT, the Prussian Minister; Major CADY, U. S. A.; Mr. ODO RUSSELL, Lord NAPIER's Secretary; Mr. ARCHBALD, British Consul at New-York; Mr. C. MARLEY, Attaché to the British Legation; Mr. PERLEY British Commissioner of Fisheries; Mr. YOUNG of the Albion newspaper, and a number of others.

The room was elegantly draped with the flags of England, Scotland, Ireland, France, Prussia, Russia and the United States; the table was loaded with ornaments; the bill of fare was an endless catalogue of delicacies, and, to crown all, Dodworth's band, at intervals, played a selection of airs—first on the list of which was that time-honored melody,

"The Roast Beef of Hold Hingland."

When the company, which numbered about 250, had taken their places at the table, the Rev. Dr. PENNELL, the Society's Chaplain, asked a blessing. After the removal of the cloth, the psalm, Non Nobis Domine, was sung by a Glee Club, the company rising en masse.

PRESIDENT'S SPEECH.

The PRESIDENT then said:

BRETHREN OF ST. GEORGE: I wish you joy on the return of our anniversary, and particularly on the goodly sight I see before me of the large assemblage collected together to celebrate it. I trust that thus far you have enjoyed yourselves, and I hope there will be still greater pleasure for you before you depart. But a short time ago, and even up almost to the day of your late election, I most certainly did not anticipate that the honor and duty of thus addressing you upon this occasion would have fallen upon me. But as you have been kind enough to express your wishes—(I am proud to say almost unanimously)—that I should resume this chair, I return you my sincere thanks for the honor you have done me. [Cheers.] It is the more gratifying to me as I feel it to be a proof that you still have confidence that my utmost exertions are at the service of this society. [Cheers.] I congratulate you, gentlemen, on the prosperity and the continued career of usefulness of your society. You continue to aid and assist a great number under the judicious and liberal management of your very zealous and charitable Committee. There is only one point that I know of in which your usefulness may be considered to have in some degree diminished. We used, as you know, to give advice to British emigrants, and assist to forward them to their future homes in the interior of this country. But that part of our duty has been rendered almost entirely unnecessary, owing to the judicious and well-carried-out labors of the Commissioners of Emigration of this State, the esteemed and venerable president of whom—(GULIAN C. VERPLANCK) I am happy to say, we have present with us as our guest. [Applause] But, gentlemen, though in this particular trust we have not so much to do, yet, during the past Winter, many an humble cot has been cheered, and many a starving and suffering human creature has been comforted, assisted, and aided forward, through the charitable efforts of your Society. And if there be any Englishmen who stand aloof and sneer at the comparatively trifling good done by the St. George's Society, I say to them come and join us—unite your hands with ours—and let us make that little good greater! [Cheers.] Gentlemen, I am proud that I have to congratulate you, both on the present state and on the future prospects of your Society. Your Treasurer informs me that there is a very large amount of funds at present at the disposal of the Charitable Committee. Your permanent fund is steadily increasing. The number of new members that have joined our ranks within the last three or four months has been almost unprecedented, and I am proud to say that we have, at this moment, more active members in this Society than ever before during its existence. As to our future prospects, you are aware, gentlemen, that to-day we have inaugurated the custom of having divine service on our anniversary. Unfortunately, so far as I am concerned, my occupations prevented me from attending, but I have been informed by those who were present, that the sermon of the reverend gentleman, who preached on the occasion, was one not unworthy either of his fame or of the event which it commemorated. [Applause.] As revivals appear to be in vogue, I am happy to say we have in our Society a number of enthusiastic and energetic members, both old and new, who are determined to give such a revival to old St. George, that we intend to leave these, our old competitors, (pointing to the representatives of the Sister Societies,) far behind us! [Cheers and laughter.] Honored as we are, to-night, by the distinguished gentlemen who surround me, it is not my intention to occupy your time by a long speech, or to trespass on your patience; but assembled once more here to-night, as we are under the folds of our country's flag, I cannot hesitate to point out to you the proud position that that country holds at this moment. [Loud cheers.] But a short year since, all England was struck with horror, I will not say with terror, at the dreadful news from India, which told us of the massacre of our brave countrymen and of the horrible and unimaginable atrocities that England's daughters had never before suffered from the foe since the dawn of history, England's enemies shouted with joy and gloried in anticipation of her downfall. They dreamed and prophesied that she would shortly be stripped of her colonies and her possessions, and that she would be reduced to the rank of an inferior power. And, doubtless, many really trusted that such would be case. I am proud and happy to say that in this country, among intelligent men, and among all great-minded Americans, that sentiment was repudiated. [Loud cheers.] I say it is a glory to Americans that on this occasion they cheered us on in the struggle, and acknowledged that England's cause was the course of right and of civilization. [Cheers.] In those days, even our best friends hoped for success, only after years of battle and strife. But, here, in comparatively a few months, owing to the indomitable valor and courage of Great Britain's sons—I say Great Britain—English, Scotch, Irish and Welsh—those years collapsed into days, and this evening we have received the news of the conquest of Lucknow. [Immense enthusiasm, the gentlemen rising, cheering and waving their handkerchiefs.] Retribution has fallen upon the rebels, and England's might and England's honor stand clear and bright before the civilized world. [Cheers.]

Gentlemen: It is not my intention to trench upon politics, but every Englishman must be proud that lately another proof has been given that, though England detests the crime of an assassin, she will not be dictated to by any other foreign power. [Cheers.] She will not permit either friend or foe to encroach on British rights, or to set a limit to British hospitality. Gentlemen, it is by such deeds as these to which I have barely alluded—for time does not permit me to do any more—and by a firm and stern determination to abide by principles, that our little country has become a great and glorious nation, and it is to show our pride of her, and our love for her, that we meet here year after year to celebrate the anniversary of the St. George's Society. [Loud and prolonged cheering.]

The following regular toasts were then proposed and responded to in the order in which they appear:

1. The Day and those who honor it.

This was received with continued cheers.

MUSIC—Solo from Handel.

2. The Queen—God bless her.

Drank with rapturous cheers.

MUSIC—The English National Anthem by the Glee Club, with piano accompaniment,—the entire company rising and joining in the chorus.

In proposing the next toast, the President said they mean to honor by it the land in which they lived and which they respected next best to their own:

3. The President of the United States.

This was received with loud cheers, the band playing "Hail Columbia."

In offering the next toast the President alluded in terms of warm personal compliment to Lord NAPIER:

4. Her Majesty's Ministers and their Representatives in this country.

Vehement and protracted cheering.

SPEECH OF LORD NAPIER.

Lord NAPIER said:

MR. CHAIRMAN AND GENTLEMEN: In rising to respond to the present toast, permit me to thank you for this renewed opportunity which you have granted me of meeting my countrymen and so large a representation of the citizens of New-York. [Cheers.] It is a mutual satisfaction for us, I trust, to draw closer the ties of nationality and good fellowship. [Cheers.] I feel the pleasure, I experience the benefit of escaping from the engrossing political concerns of Washington, and mingling with the industrial movement and practical intelligence of this great metropolis. [Cheers.] When I had the honor of addressing you a year ago we had recently issued from a great war, by a reasonable peace, and it was natural to suppose that we might enjoy the fruits of our exertions and sacrifices in a period of unbroken repose and unchecked prosperity. You know how those expectations have been frustrated. We have passed through the fires of a great affliction. It has been said that a country is happy whose history is dull but, gentlemen, we have little experience of that sort of felicity which is connected with stagnation. ["Hear" and cheers.] We repudiate the sordid safety of an isolated and idle Power. [Cheers.] It is the boast of England to be embarked on a course of ubiquitous activity and unceasing progress. We believe that our purposes are good, that our actions are honest, that our work deserves, on the whole, the commendation of men and the favor of Providence. It is certain, however, that this crowed and aspiring career cannot be pursued without trial and peril, and without the vicissitudes of good and evil fortune. We have learned again that dangers must be encountered, that errors must be corrected, that the precipitation and injustice of other times and other agents will still demand their eventual expiation. It is not my part to expatiate here on our prolonged agony and our unparalleled triumph. This very day we have learned that the fantastic fabric of barbarous empire, supported by delusion and despair, has crumbled under the thunders of the British guns, [vehement cheering,] and that the Indian mutiny—with all its associations of horror and anguish, of faith, of tenderness and glory—is vanishing away, leaving to us the duties of mercy and the task of restoration. God forbid, gentlemen, that I should extenuate the cruelties which have been committed—that I should undervalue the sufferings which have been endured. We will never forget the young, the innocent, the fair, the brave who have trodden the darkest road which ascends to immortality. [Cheers.] Our loss has, indeed, been grievous, but our consolations have been great. We possess the virtues of the departed. We possess those examples of piety, fidelity, patience and heroism which will be laid up in the brightest treasures of time and we possessed a friend in the hour of tribulation. When the gloom had gathered most thickly then a voice of comfort and encouragement burst from the American people. [Cheers.] That was a fraternal voice, and its tones will not soon expire in the grateful memory of England. Gentlemen, on this occasion, in the presence of my respected colleague, and in that of so many of his countrymen, I cannot pass over in silence the recent union of the future sovereign of Prussia with the daughter of our Queen. [Cheers.] Why is it, gentlemen, that this union has roused such wide and warm emotions in our respective countries? Why is it that these young lives and precious destinies have been offered to a benignant heaven with the prayers and aspirations of all true German and British hearts? Not only because this alliance is so natural, so equal, so auspicious; not only because it is the work of spontaneous impulses, and the reward of parental virtues; not only because it has rent asunder the veil which hangs between the joys and sorrows of the humble and the great, and blended all in the universal circle of domestic love. [Cheers.] More than this. The union to which I allude has become the gentle symbol of that profound and ancient sympathy which, notwithstanding the disturbances of contemporary politics, still prevails between the nations of Germany and England. That sympathy is founded in the deep and durable engagements of the past. We trace it in our common birth, our common faith, our kindred thought, our confederate arms; in our standards, always planted side by side; in the recollections of the great FREDERICK and the recollections of the great Duke, on the soil of the German fatherland moistened by our mingled blood. [Loud cheers.] Nor are these imperishable features of our mutual history remembered in a spirit of animosity or a spirit of exultation. They are calmly and proudly cherished as the basis of a generous affection. We preserve these memories as we preserve the armor and the trophies of our ancestors, for glory—not for offence; and surely, gentlemen, there is something peculiarly significant in this cordial greeting of all the members of the German family on the territories of the United States. If in Europe we can look back to a united past, here we have the picture of an associated future. Twelve centuries have gone by since Germany sent her enterprising swarms to supplant the primitive population of the British Isles. In this vast interval we have, on separate scenes, enacted our respective missions in labor, in science, in letters and in politics; but here we stand at length, at the time and on the place of an appointed reassembly. You who inhabit the City of New-York are the constant, and not the indifferent, spectators of this ceaseless movement. You preside at the gates through which the German and British people are being poured through into the vast receptacle of future nations. You guard, you teach, you relieve, you employ the destitute emigrant, the forlorn and unconscious instrument in a mighty and benevolent dispensation; you pass him or his children on to a new and, we hope, a happier existence. Gentlemen, you have done me the honor to associate my name with the names of Her Majesty's present advisers. I will not fail to carry to them the respects and good wishes of the British community of New-York, and of the guests who have joined in the present commemoration. [Cheers.] Her Majesty's Minister will certainly not be insensible to such a mark of courtesy and regard. There are few Englishmen who have not some connection, hereditary or personal, with political party, and even foreigners may see in our ministerial relations the triumph or defeat of principles and measures to which they are attached. We stand, however, apart from the scene of conflict, and regard it with comparative impartiality. Absence and distance from our country have something of the moderating influence which belongs to the lapse of time. Maintaining our devotion to the principles of monarchy, to the person of our beloved Sovereign, and to legislative and executive institutions, working in conformity with the popular will, we may all recognize that the two great parties which alternately sway the destinies of England, possess in their fruitful ranks men who are worthy to enjoy the honors and direct the energies of the State. Both have successfully labored on the red face of our national prosperity. But whatever may be the destinctions between a Palmerston and a Derby Administration in the sphere of domestic politics, or on the ampler scene of foreign and colonial affairs, there is one point in which the policy of the present Cabinet will strictly coincide with that of their predecessors, in seeking to maintain the most intimate and friendly relations with the United States. [Cheers.] The part which I am called upon to take in his salutary work is one of a subordinate and deputed character, yet I need not tell you that where my efforts and counsels can be properly employed, they shall be unceasingly directed towards an object in which my convictions, my ambition, and my heart are equally involved. [Cheers.] There are still embarrassments in the relations of our governments which hang upon the ready cordiality of the two nations, and clog the flow of that mutual and public satisfaction which should be universal and undisturbed. [Cheers, and cries of Hear! Hear!] If it be reserved for the Earl of Malmesbury, in conjunction with the present government of the United States, to remove these last impediments to a perfect understanding, they will have an honorable claim on the gratitude of England and America. [Hear and cheers.] It appears to me that the better period has already commenced, and commenced upon a field of incalculable importance. The avenues

...to be not confined to our mother country! ... attend and become cemented also in the ... country, to whose hospitable shores thousands ... of thousands of our emigrants from the British ... from Prussia and other German States, arrive ... annually to establish a new home and to unite their ... energies with American industry and enterprise in ... developing the unbounded resources and promoting ... the welfare of new and rising States. Gentlemen, I ... thank you cordially for your kind invitation to this ... anniversary celebration of your Society, and for the ... opportunity it has afforded for giving expression to ... our sympathies in behalf of the happy union be... tween the two royal families of our respective coun...tries.

The Baron's speech was terminated amid great ap...plause.

6. The Armies and Navies of Great Britain and the United States.—May they never meet but in harmony ...hereafter.

...Sung by the Glee Club.

Major CARY, U. S. A., replied. He said that anterior to this time he had never been called upon to present himself before a public audience as a speaker. He could truly say that in no respect could the members of the American naval and military service meet with their brethren of the English army and navy with greater pleasure than in a state of peace. [Here some gentlemen at one end of the room, with but an indistinct perception of anything, and especially of any thing in the shape of courtesy, bawled—"Louder, louder!"] I hope, said the major, that my friends will recollect that I am not an orator by profession, for in attempting to speak to you, I do greater violence to myself than I have ever done on any previous occasion in my life. I am no orator, and I may truly say that I would rather march up to a battery this moment than attempt to make a speech to you. [Loud laughter and cheers.] The speaker remarked in conclusion that he subscribed most fully to the sentiment, and would say that in any capacity, save that of an enemy, he would rather meet our British friends. He sat down amid cheers.

The President offered the next toast in order:

7. Our Sister Societies—Their esteemed representatives, our welcome guests!

This was honored with a round of applause.

Music—by the Band.

Mr. NORRIE replied on behalf of the St. Andrew's Society, and offered the following sentiment:

The venerable Ex-Chancellors, Lords Lyndhurst and Brougham—Illustrious representatives of the majesty and purity of English law.

Mr. RICHARD BELL followed on behalf of the Friendly Sons of St. Patrick, and wound up with a sentiment:

The glorious garland that flourished at Delhi and Lucknow—The Rose, the Shamrock, and the Thistle, may they never disunite or decay. [Loud cheers.]

Mr. VERPLANCK replied for the St. Nicholas Society, and gave as a sentiment:

The land and the language of Shakespeare.

Mr. BONNEY, in responding for the New-England Society, offered a sentiment also:

The Anglo-Saxon Family.—Peace and harmony among all its branches until its mission is accomplished. [Cheers.]

The last toast:

was honored with a bumper and uproarious cheers.

The festivities did not end with this. It was pretty late in the morning before they ended.

Amusements.

ACADEMY OF MUSIC.—MUSARD'S second Matinée takes place to-day, beginning at 3½ o'clock. The programme is unusually varied, and four soloists will assist on the occasion—Madame D'ANGRI, Signor TIBERINI, Mr. VIEUXTEMPS and Mr. THALBERG.

To-morrow the first grand Sacred Concert takes place; the programme is divided into two parts—the first containing an excellent selection of sacred and classical pieces, (vocal and instrumental;) the second consisting of MOZART'S "Requiem." The full orchestra will be used, assisted by the Liederkrantz chorus. The solos by Mesdames D'ANGRI, CARADORI and MILNER, and Messieurs TIBERINI, PERRINO and CARL FORMES. Price of admission 50 cents.

PHILHARMONIC SOCIETY.—The fourth and last concert of the season takes place to-night at the Academy of Music. Conductor Mr. THEODORE EISFELD.

WALLACK'S THEATRE.—Mr. BLAKE, one of the best of living artists, takes his benefit here to-night; the comedy of the "Poor Gentleman," and the new comic drama of the "Love Knot," will be played.

NIBLO'S GARDEN.—Mlle LINA WINDEL, one of the most fascinating and accomplished members of the Ravel troupe, takes her farewell benefit to-night. A very attractive programme has been provided for the occasion, and all the famous artists, ROLLA, ZANFRETTA, GABRIEL, ANTOINE and JEROME, and Young America will assist the bénéficiare.

MECHANICS HALL.—Those extraordinary juveniles, the Boone children, take their farewell benefit this afternoon at Mechanics Hall. Miss CUSHMAN declared that these children were the only youthful readers and actors of the age. We trust that they will derive substantial benefit from their performance to-day.

MUSICAL.—We are always pleasantly reminded of the existence of a good publishing house by receiving, on the eve of a classical performance, one of NOVELLO'S editions of the best music in the world. Their edition of MOZART'S "Requiem" (to be played to-morrow night at the Academy of Music) is all that the most fastidious amateur or professor can desire; it is correct, elegant and cheap. The agents of Messrs. NOVELLO are WEBB & ALLEN, who have just changed their quarters from Broadway to No. 1 Clinton Building, Astor-place. By strict attention to business, and by supplying a series of publications which are of unequalled accuracy and utility, these gentlemen have already built up a large business, and have been pleasantly compelled to remove to their present large store. BERLIOZ'S admirable work on Modern Instrumentation—a work which is indispensable to all who would learn how to write for an orchestra—has just been issued by this house. It contains a succinct account of every instrument now in use, its native character; its orchestral color, its capabilities and its depths. The illustrations (printed in full score) are taken from the best composers of the modern school, accompanied by copious remarks and suggestions from Mr. BERLIOZ'S pen. The present edition has been revised by the author, and we cordially recommend it as the only work on the modern art of instrumentation worthy of deliberate and careful study.

City Items.

SUDDEN DEATH OF EX-ALDERMAN DELAMATER.—About 6½ o'clock yesterday morning the wife of Mr. SAMUEL DELAMATER, residing in Twenty-third-street, was awakened by a groan, and, turning to ascertain the cause, found her husband lying in the agonies of death beside her. He expired almost immediately. His death was caused by apoplexy. He had been apparently in good health the day previous. Mr. DELAMATER had been an active politician for many years, formerly connected with the Whig Party, and latterly a Republican. He was Chairman of the Sixteenth Ward Republican Association, and one of the most influential men in the Ward. He was a builder, and had a large amount of work on hand at the time of his death. He was a man of large means, and noted for his generosity to every enterprise. He leaves a widow and several children. The funeral will take place on Sunday afternoon, at 5 o'clock.

ARREST OF A RIVER THIEF.—Officers James Lee and Daniel Holland, of the Harbor Police, arrested, yesterday morning, John O'Brien, a notorious river thief, for having, on Tuesday night, stolen from a schooner lying at Pier No. 3, North River, a quantity of rigging, blocks, falls, &c. The property was recovered and restored to the owner. The prisoner was locked up for examination.

The Geographical Society, Thursday evening, adopted a resolution, offered by Dr. ADAMSON, in favor of requesting the Central Park Commissioners to leave some spots in the Park in the natural state, and to occupy the greater portion of the ground with trees and shrubs, arranged in masses, each containing many species, with appropriate labels, so as to exhibit a grand outline of the vegetable kingdom of nature for universal instruction.

The value of Foreign Dry Goods imported into the port of New-York this week is only $901,888, against $1,775,908 same week last year.

Among the freight engagements reported yesterday for Liverpool, were 150 cases pickled oysters, at 10s. 6d.

Sea and Ship News.

The agents and owners of vessels upon the Lakes held a large meeting at the Chicago Board of Trade Rooms, on the 19th inst., to report upon a method of organization to protect their interests, in the matter of freight charges, which they allege have become ruinously low. The Report states that the amount of grain now in store at the ports on Lake Michigan, and also in the country is much larger than it has been for several years past. Also that the return freight from ports on all the Lakes has greatly fallen off. The amount of money invested in the Lake craft is estimated at eight millions of dollars.

An association was formed for the purpose of securing the coöperation among all the owners and masters of Lake craft to maintain uniform and pay... prices for freight. The following rates were approved:

| | Per bu. | | Per bu. |
|---|---|---|---|
| Wheat to Buffalo | 8c. | Wheat to Oswego | 12c. |
| Corn to Buffalo | 7c. | Corn to Oswego | 10½c. |
| Oats to Buffalo | 5c. | Oats to Oswego | 8c. |
| Wheat to St. Catharines | 11c. | Corn to St. Cathriaes | 10c. |

To Kingston ½c. ₱ bushel over Oswego rates for Wheat and Corn.

To Ogdensburg 2c. ₱ bushel over Oswego rates for Wheat and Corn.

To Montreal 6c. ₱ bushel over Oswego rates on Wheat and Corn.

A resolution opposed to the combination was voted down.

PARENTS AND OTHERS

Will find the most happy effects upon health resulting from the use of

WING'S FARINA CRACKERS.

Many eminent physicians recommend them as one of the most useful delicacies ever prepared, particularly for ladies. It is found that at such times as it may be necessary for patients to confine themselves to food free from all feverish tendency, these Crackers prove to be most excellent.

The kind action of this food, and its ready assimilation with the juices of the stomach, it is believed, render this article greatly superior to the ordinary preparations resorted to while under medical treatment.

In a state of great debility, or when food is necessary which does not require masticating, soak WING'S CRACKERS in COLD WATER until they separate into spongy, tender flakes; then, if necessary, warm and sweeten, or flavor as shall be most acceptable. When proper, good milk may be added.

In either way, one of the most delicate and healthful nourishments is prepared that can be conceived of, not only for adults, but for those of a tender age.

Ask your Grocer for

AT A MEETING OF THE PRO-PATRIA LODGE, No. 1, I. O. S. M., held at the Lodge Room, No. 814 Broadway, on Friday, April 23, the following preamble and resolutions were unanimously adopted:

Whereas, Having learned with sorrow the sudden death of our much esteemed brother, SAMUEL DE LAMATER, who was struck down in the midst of his friends, while apparently in full health, and to commemorate his usefulness, and the respect entertained for his memory; therefore

Resolved, That by this dispensation of Divine Providence, we have been deprived of the companionship of our late brother, SAMUEL DE LAMATER, who was suddenly cut off in his career of usefulness by the hand of Death, thereby depriving his family of one of the best of husbands and fathers, and his brethren of the best of friends.

Resolved, That this Lodge will attend in a body the funeral obsequies, and we invite the members of other lodges of our order to unite with us in paying this last sad tribute of respect to our deceased brother.

The brethren are requested to assemble at the Lodge Room, No. 814 Broadway, on SUNDAY, the 25th inst., at 3 o'clock.

QUERU'S COD LIVER OIL JELLY.

New-York, April 17, 1858.

Dear Sir: Having seen in this day's New York Times, among the medical advertisements, one calling attention to

COD LIVER OIL JELLY,

I desire to know if it is the article introduced by you last year, and approved of by the New-York Academy of Medicine, or is it only an imitation?

An answer in the columns of the same paper will oblige more than one that learned body in their sitting of June 3, 1857, I would say that it is not my article. I have since procured a sample of the so-called Cod Liver Oil Jelly, advertised by the manufacturer, and find it but a pasty mass, more resembling a pomade than a medicinal preparation. With all due thanks to "Physician" for his interest in this matter, I believe that no physician, after the slightest examination of my preparation, could, for a moment, be deceived by the article in question. My Cod Jelly contains 85 per cent. of pure Norway Cod Liver Oil. Physicians are respectfully invited to call and examine my preparation. My pamphlets explanatory of the motives for using the Norway Oil, and containing the report of the Academy of Medicine, will be sent free to all who may desire it.

Respectfully,
E. QUERU No. 364 Canal-st.

DR. MAGNIN'S LUCINA CORDIAL, OR ELIXIR OF LOVE.—From the earliest ages stimulants have been resorted to as a means of reviving the energies of Nature. Of this fact, both sacred and profane history assure us. But the great difficulty has been to find an exhilarant which would produce the desired effect continuously, and entail no subsequent depression. This grand desideratum, sought for by every physician from the time of Galen to the present day, is accomplished at last! The Lucina Cordial restores and permanently invigorates the broken-down system of man. It replaces natural weakness with energy and strength. The responding it revives the feeble it endows with vigor; and the cheerfulness and strength which it restores or creates, it also preserves. To the sickly wife it imparts that degree of vital force necessary to the crowning joy and great object of matrimony. To the debilitated husband it gives the nervous and muscular energy which characterises manhood. In all cases of nerv man, Horton, Kunkel of Ind., Kunkel of Penn., Lamar, McKibbin, Marshall of Ill., Matteson, Powell, Smith of Va., Stewart of Penn., Taylor of La., Washburn of Wis. and Mr. HARRIS, of Ill., moved that the vote be reconsidered, and to lay that motion on the table.

Mr. STEPHENS moved to adjourn. Negatived by 12 majority.

Mr. TRIPPE (Mr. HARRIS having temporarily withdrawn his motion) said he would have preferred a postponement till an earlier day than May or next Monday, but as his colleague (Mr. HILL) and other gentlemen design being absent, he would vote for the second Monday in May. He could see no damage to ensue from the postponement, unless members were afraid of themselves. He had no idea that there would be a prolonged debate. If the majority intend to pass the bill, they can do so under the previous question at any time. He, however, desired to be heard on the subject. He did not know what his final action would be on the bill. While it was being read, he ascertained for the first what its provisions were. He was not willing to vote on twenty-four hours' consideration on a question of this kind, which presented, on the face of it, strong evidence of taking the back track. He protested against a vote on the collateral question being decisive of what his final action would be, and against being led like a victim to the altar without saying anything.

Mr. STARKE, of Georgia, made an ineffectual motion for the House to adjourn.

Mr. BURNETT, of Kentucky, in reply to Mr. TRIPPE, said if any had been abused, he did not know from what source it emanated. He presumed every gentleman voted on his own judgment, without reference to the opinion of others.

Mr. TRIPPE explained that he meant an improper construction should not be placed upon a mere collateral question.

Mr. BURNETT replied that one hundred and twenty speeches had been made on the Kansas question to the exclusion of debate on other important subjects. Some gentleman had voted for the proposition because they wanted time to think, while others voted to prevent the settlement of the question. He appealed to gentlemen all round, North and South, whether they were not prepared to make up an intelligent judgment by Monday next. If they intended to restore peace to Kansas and the country they should act without unnecessary delay.

Mr. HILL said if it had not been for particular reasons he would not have made the motion to postpone until the second Monday in May.

Mr. GARTRELL, of Georgia, objected to the gentleman making any explanation.

Mr. HILL said he expected as much, and made a further remark, which was inaudible in the reporter's gallery.

Mr. HILL at the time was in the immediate neighborhood of Mr. GARTRELL, and several friends were standing between these gentlemen, who seemed in earnest and exciting conversation.

The Speaker called them to order several times, and asked where the Sergeant-at-Arms was, and directed Mr. HILL to retire to his seat.

The threatened difficulty soon passed away.

After several ineffectual motions to adjourn, the last prevailed by five majority, pending a motion made by Mr. HARRIS, of Illinois, to reconsider the vote by which the House postponed the consideration of the Kansas question, and to lay that motion on the table. Adjourned.

NEW-YORK CITY.

New-York Methodist East Conference.

The Conference met at 8½ o'clock A. M. Friday. The exercises were opened with prayer. After the transaction of official business, the debate on the Slavery resolutions was resumed.

Dr. PERRY, addressing the Conference, alluded to matters of detail, in which Mr. LONG and his book, the Christian Advocate, Zion's Herald and other agencies had been mixed up with Mr. QUIGLEY and his charges against Mr. LONG for the publication of his book, Pictures of Slavery. In the face of the united testimony of the Philadelphia conference, he could not believe Mr. LONG. It was a maxim in law, false in one thing, false in all. He (Mr. LONG) had pertinaciously repeated many statements that had often been contradicted and refuted. As to the general aspect of the question, influence from New-York had been gathered to strengthen the power of proscription against the authoritative organ of the body, and in favor of a new programme. This movement came from the East. This Conference was captured territory, but yet freedom of speech was not abolished. Already the vanguard of this movement had planted its standard in New-York. [Amen, from several voices.] "You know," said the speaker, "what I mean, but I hope from my soul you will show yourselves Methodist preachers still. Amen. This is illegal, rebellious; every action taken here in the direction of this movement is to close the border line between the Church of the North and the South, and when the entering wedge has done its work it will be seen that the mischief is done. 'Let the potsherds strive with the potsherds of the earth;' let us keep aloof from politics, separate ourselves from secular things, and give ourselves to the things of God." Dr. PERRY proceeded to argue that the minister who demanded a guarantee of protection in preaching the Gospel was not of Paul's school. There ought to be no catering for the undercurrent of popular sentiment, no complicity with political movement or opinion. He then quoted the opinions of the Bishops deprecating agitation. In what might be said in contradiction, though he could not reply, let it not be taken as an admission that he was wrong.

The Rev. Mr. HUBBELL rose to support the resolutions, and maintained that the Conference was distinctly an Anti-Slavery Conference. The question of human rights was a moral question, and Methodist ministers were by their official position the recognized exponents and teachers of morals, the leaders, not the slaves, of public opinion. Truth must always be spoken, kindly, but fearlessly. They did not propose to light the incendiary torch, or to urge men to preach Anti-Slavery sermons,—no such thing,—but only to educate the people up to a certain point. It would leave individual ministers to act out their convictions for themselves. How could men allege they were in favor of extinguishing a fire, and yet determined to sit still, to do nothing? Such were the Conservatives. They admitted the evil, but refused to move in the matter.

After other gentlemen had spoken, the Rev. Mr STUDLEY addressed the conference. Some men believed that silence was best on this subject, and afforded the most correct method of ridding the world of Slavery. But silence was stagnation, and stagnation was death. The subject did not belong wholly to politicians. Preachers were men, and as such were American citizens. He did not believe the matter ought to be left to professional politicians. Moral questions were unsafe enough in the hands of men enlightened by the spirit of God, without leaving them exclusively to the tender mercies of mere trading politicians. It was due to the Conferences in the South to let them know they would be supported in the enforcement of discipline, by the recognition of a principle here. The Church of Christ must be free—free forever—from all taint of this enormity against God and against man. American Slavery, bad as it is, and wide as are its ramifications, was doomed. It might threaten to lay its bloody hand upon the few valiant men who stand up for Liberty, but it was only the storm and bluster of a system that was doomed. God, the Bible, Christ were against it, and nothing could blot out the decree of heaven. His annihilating judgments would as surely come down upon this form of sin as upon adultery or murder. He desired to be found on the Lord's side, as the right side.

Dr. KENNEDY spoke. He had always wished and aimed to be on the "Lord's side." But he stood, also, for the unity of the Church.

Rev. Mr. CROOKS, Rev. Mr. HATFIELD, Rev. Dr. BANGS, Rev. Dr. DURBIN rose to make personal explanations.

A vote was then taken, and the original resolutions and report were adopted, the substitute proposed by Dr. BANGS being voted down, 51 to 35.

A motion to characterize Slavery as "mercenary Slavery" was laid on the table.

The Conference met in the afternoon, to announce the appointments, and then the proceedings were brought to a close.

WARMING AND VENTILATING.—There are few things more talked about or less understood—and none of more vital importance—than proper ventilation. Impure air renders the blood impure, and tends to originate consumption. Whatever makes the air impure makes the blood impure. Pure air purifies the blood. What, then, are some of the more prominent things which render the air impure? Motion is necessary for everything animate. Still water becomes impure—still air becomes impure. Running water purifies itself. Air in motion, draughts of air, are self-purifiers. Thus it is that close rooms render the air impure, and bring consumption to countless thousands. Hence, all rooms should be so constructed as to have a constant draught of air through them. Rooms warmed by stoves or grates create an inward pressure of cold air through doors and windows, which, striking the occupants, produces colds and influenza. An even temperature, as well as temper, is necessary to health. Nature is ever struggling to equalize itself. The air should be warm when admitted into the rooms. Now the question arises—What is the best method of warming the air? One mode is by hot water tubes or coils of pipe. The objections to this mode are the large space required for the apparatus and its great expense, the difficulty of warming the apartments in severe cold weather, and the liability of the pipes or tubes leaking and admitting into the rooms the disagreeable odor arising from the sediment of boiling water. The other and more usual mode is by hot-air furnaces placed in the lower story, the air taken through them, and from thence through pipes to the rooms to be heated. The objections to this mode are their liability to leak gas, the inconvenience of cleaning the fire flues, and their extravagance in fuel. These objections were represented to us last Fall as entirely overcome in Bartlett's Patent Furnace. We were induced to try one, and are pleased to say with perfectly satisfactory results. We can speak in no higher praise of this Furnace than to say that it has done all that it was recommended to do by the Patentee. The claims of this Furnace are: 1st. It is next to an impossibility to set a building on fire by it; 2d. It is less liable than others to get out of order; 3d. It is more economical; 4th. It is more easily cleaned; 5th. It is absolutely free from gas; 6th. It takes less space to set it than any other of a corresponding power. A large assortment of these Furnaces can be seen at the storerooms of Messrs. BARTLETT & LESLEY, No. 380 Broadway.

STERLING AND INSTRUCTIVE ENTERTAINMENT.—Manager PUDDY, of the National Theatre, appears determined not to be outdone in giving the public good amusement. At present he has most decidedly the "best Company that has ever appeared on his stage." The pieces selected are of sterling merit, classic and instructive, and they are placed upon the stage with more care and liberality than at any other Theatre in the City. The audience that now visit there, we are pleased to see, are of the most respectable of our City and Brookyn; and, so long as the manager continues in his present course, PUDDY'S National Theatre must, and will, be the centre of attraction To-night "Pizzaro," with Mr. H. The large assortment of hats and caps at his establishment, corner of Broadway and Fulton-street, are worthy of attention, and will well repay a visit.

The Littles Murder Trial—The Plea of Guilty

From the Rochester Union, April 22.

We have at length begun to see the end of the trial of IRA STOUT for the murder of LITTLES—the testimony for the prosecution has closed—the opening for the defence has been made, and the struggle between the law and the prisoner has been narrowed down to murder or manslaughter—the accused taking the latter position in open court.

At ten minutes past 11 o'clock to-day, Mr. POMEROY began to open the case for the defence. He spoke an hour and three quarters, when the Court took a recess for dinner. He resumed his remarks at 2 o'clock this afternoon, and had not concluded at 3 o'clock. It is understood that his opening will be his main speech, and that he will say little or nothing at the close. We have full phonetic notes of the remarks by Mr. POMEROY, which we will publish verbatim to-morrow, and ours will be the only full report.

The defence has assumed the position we anticipated—he has confessed the homicide was committed as charged in the indictment; that Ira Stout slew Charles W. Littles on the river bank, threw his body over the precipice and into the river. Mr. POMEROY said it would be useless to deny this after the testimony introduced by the people, and he further stated that he was authorized by his client, the prisoner, to admit this. But the counsel for the defence say the deed was not premeditated, and that it is manslaughter. He tells the Jury that the prisoner only expects them to make the case manslaughter, and allow him to answer for his crime by a long term of imprisonment rather than with his life. He only begs for mercy, and comes before the Jury a suppliant for life, even though in a dungeon for years, yet untold.

The counsel examined the testimony for the people at some length, and admitted that it was true so far as the facts were concerned, but intimated that wrong impressions as to the motive might be drawn from it. He confessed that the prisoner had committed a dreadful crime, for which he ought to be punished, and that the prisoner himself admitted as much. He also stated that MRS. LITTLES was present, and was implicated with her brother, if the crime was premeditated, which he denied.

When Mr. POMEROY described the homicide, and painted a picture of the slain man lying upon the ground, and his guilty brother standing over him in the darkness of the night below the great cataract, the prisoner was deeply affected, and for the first time during the trial tears gushed from his eyes, and not from his eyes alone, but from those of the spectators and the Jury. Mr. POMEROY said the course of the prisoner in attempting to conceal the body and the evidences of his crime was wrong, and bore heavily against him; but he contended that wiser men than he had done so, and cited the case of Dr. WEBSTER and his murder of Dr. PARKMAN.

Mr. POMEROY bore down upon the character of LITTLES with great force. He described him as a man grossly licentious, depraved in mind and corrupt in body; an adulterer, and one without any of those qualities which would distinguish him from the brute. On the deceased he was very severe—many will say unnecessarily so. We understand that he will consume but a short space of time in presenting testimony for the defence. The District-Attorney has only to contend in his closing that the crime is murder and not manslaughter.

Verdict of "Guilty of Murder."

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Friday, April 23.

The defence in the Littles murder case rested at 10 o'clock this morning. The summing up on both sides and the Judge's charge occupied six hours. The Jury retired at 5 o'clock, and in one hour after brought in a verdict "Guilty of murder." The prisoner, STOUT, will be sentenced at 10 A. M. to-morrow.

Thurlow Weed's Return to Editorial Life.

From the Albany Evening Journal, 22d.

More than two years ago the then Senior Editor of this journal, desiring exemption from the responsibilities of his position, rather than from duties strictly professional, (for they were ever congenial,) sold his interest in the establishment to SAMUEL WILKESON, Esq., of Buffalo. That gentleman, fitted by education, talents and experience, as well as by the soundness and fidelity of his principles, for the duties he assumed, labored with zeal and ability until his health failed. For nearly a year he has been able at intervals only to endure mental exertion; and more recently the progress of disease has admonished him of the necessity of making health his first and paramount duty and care. This involves a change of residence, and consequently a transfer of his interests here. May he find, in returning to the scenes of his youth and early manhood, an elixir that will restore the blessings then enjoyed.

This change imposes upon us the necessity of resuming the interest we sold to Mr. WILKESON. We do so from a compulsion from which we would gladly escape; compulsion, because we have a large pecuniary interest in the Journal, the value of which wholly depends upon the degree of vigor and energy with which it is conducted.

Having been doing duty, with more zeal than ability, for forty years, we felt that it was time to unharness, and give place to editors with youth, genius and enthusiasm on their side; editors of the generation present, whose associations and sympathies bring them into more immediate collision with the men and things of to-day. Those who have numbered three-score years rarely retain, mentally or physically, the spirit and elasticity that is required to deal understandingly with young America. Obedience to this law of nature induced our withdrawal in 1855. Constrained, however, to return, we resume our task with a determination to labor with diligence, certainly, and not unacceptably, it is hoped, for the Republican cause, holding ourself in cheerful readiness, at any moment, to resign our paper and pen to any successor whom our party or friends may indicate.

FRIDAY, April 23—P. M.

The day has been a dull one in Wall-street, in nearly all departments of business. The steamer's news, which was made public from Halifax at 2 o'clock, scarcely relieved the general apathy. The Cotton people were not entirely satisfied with the brief report of the Liverpool market, and a light business was done here as compared with the unusual operations of yesterday. There is no change in prices. The Exchange market for the City of Washington, screw-steamer, sailing to-morrow, rules in favor of buyers; the demand is light, and the best bills are supplied at 108¾ ℔ cent. in round sums, and 108¾ ℔ cent. in amounts drawn to a point. Francs are 5.17½@5.16¼ to the dollar. The Money market is easy and dull. Borrowers, at call, and on short prime paper, make cheap terms, where the security is desirable. We hear of business as low as 4 ℔ cent. The general rule is not above 5 ℔ cent., at call, and 5@6 ℔ cent. on mercantile bills within bank practice as to date.

The business at the Stock Exchange to-day is much below an average day's work, and both parties at the Board of Brokers appear to have come to a dead stand in speculation. The market as far as it goes, is almost self-supporting. Prices are generally firm, as compared with Thursday; and at the close, on several of the Railroad Stocks the bidding was at very full rates, without bringing forward sellers: Erie, 25¼@½; Rock Island 76½@¾; Reading, 47¼@½; Hudson, 30⅜; Toledo, 44, and New-York Central 89¼@89¾ ℔ cent. The Bonds of the last-named Company were firm, and so were the State loans of Missouri and Tennessee, but only on a retail business. There was a sale of $17,000 Erie Convertibles of 1871 at 40 ℔ cent., which is a decline of 2@3 ℔ cent. from the previous transactions, and of $12,000 Terre Haute and Alton second mortgage at 43 ℔ cent. The general market left off firm in prices, but without speculative spirit. The Bears seem to have put out as many contracts as they could venture on the abundance of Money and relative scarcity of Stocks on the Street, and the Bulls are doing quite as little for the moment to stimulate prices.

In a note to the Evening Post, Mr. OLYPHANT makes the following explanation in regard to the letter of President JERVIS, of the Michigan Southern, to the English stockholders, to which reference was made in the TIMES a few days since:

"From a copy of the letter referred to, I will quote, for the benefit of those interested, its precise language. After alluding to what has been done towards providing for the floating debt, Mr. JERVIS writes, 'that there will remain $1,400,000 in the Second Mortgage Bonds to further provide for the floating debt; but it is yet uncertain whether or not these bonds can be advantageously disposed of, though it is believed that creditors will take them in part, in preference to the long delay that a portion of their debt must otherwise wait for payment.'

If the balance of debt, Mr. JERVIS goes on to say, 'can be funded by the 7 ℔ cent. Bonds, the balance of the Second General Mortgage Bonds would nearly close this floating debt at the end of the current year, or end of 1858.' 'If the floating debt is not funded, it must be paid from the earnings of the road, which will require, probably, three years from the close of 1858,' and, 'of course, no dividends or stock can be made until this floating debt is paid or funded.'"

The Pennsylvania Legislature has modified the usury laws of the Commonwealth so as to enable the lender to recover at least 6 ℔ cent interest and the principal of the debt, and to withhold relief from the borrower for excessive interest taken in advance, unless his plea is filed within six months of the transaction.

The shareholders of the old Nicaragua Transit Company may have been somewhat disturbed this morning by the pronunciamento of Señor YRISARRI, that no one except Mr. JOSEPH L WHITE with his Ship Canal charter can ever hope to get through the Isthmus of Nicaragua. On this point we publish in another place a communication from a well-posted authority, to the effect that if the route is opened, it will be under very different auspices. We deem it altogether probable that whenever Mr. VANDERBILT thinks proper to cooperate from New-York with the emigration and trading movement from Mobile and New-Orleans, he has the power in his own hands, under the original and also under the Randolph Grant, to reopen this route to California and the South Pacific Coast. The steam-power he certainly holds. The political power is not with the quasi Minister, behind whose authority Mr. WHITE is attempting to interpose his paper shadow.

We know nothing of the views of Mr. VANDERBILT on the future of this route, and cannot judge, therefore, whether he intends to reorganize the steam line for the benefit of the old Nicaragua share holders, or on his individual account. It is only certain that GARRISON & MORGAN, with the Randolph grant, are no longer in the way, and that it is out of the power of such an influence as that of WHITE to be in the way. Neither the Canal fossil nor the Yrisarri treaty have been recognized by the present Government in Nicaragua. They have still less chance under the Americanization of the Isthmus, to which the peaceable and strictly commercial efforts of the Mobile Company are to be directed.

The following is a comparative statement of the imports of Foreign Dry Goods at New-York for the week and since Jan. 1:

The Nicaragua Transit.

WASHINGTON HOTEL, BOWLING-GREEN,
Friday, April 23, 1858.

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

By proclamation from Brooklyn Heights, His Excellency Señor DON A. J. DE YRISARRI makes known to bulls and bears of Wall street that for the transit across the Isthmus of Nicaragua there is but one franchise—"the old Ship Canal Company," of which JOE WHITE is "god and prophet."

Last advices from Nicaragua state that this Company, which the exalted diplomat of Brooklyn Heights would have us receive as the true gospel, is not an article of faith with the apology for a Government which Señor YRISARRI represents, but is by them repudiated.

The only transit charter for which the Government of Nicaragua have received compensation, as per contract, is the Randolph Grant, transferred to GARRISON & MORGAN, and by them sold to Commodore VANDERBILT. With this right in his pocket, and the control of the Accessary Transit Company's Charter, the Commodore may, possibly, venture to open the route in defiance of the manifesto of the Plenipo on the Heights.

The Mobile Company start their first steamer early in June. The stockholders of this Company are wealthy, and said to have a perfect understanding with VANDERBILT. Is it against this Company, or against VANDERBILT, then Señor YRISARRI has pronounced?

The Nicaraguan Minister is very positive that the Canal Company is the only safe investment; but his positive assertions have not thus far turned out always true. His celebrated treaty has not yet been confirmed, although he has several times had positive information that it had been. Neither has his letter to the Secretary of State, thanking Commodore PAULDING for invading Nicaraguan territory, yet been approved by President MARTINEZ.

This old Canal Company is the child of JOE WHITE, PARKER H. FRENCH, STEBBINS & Co., got up for their own individual benefit, YRISARRI and a Washington official also having a share. Before investing our money, let us see what Commodore VANDERBILT and the Mobile and Nicaragua Steamship Company are about.

MUGGINS.

Real Estate, Friday, April 23.

Mr. LUDLOW sold, under foreclosure, a house and lot on the west side of the Bowery, next adjoining the Citizens' Bank, on the corner of Canal-street, (Walker) Lot 12.6 front by 84.2 deep, with a three-story frame house, 60 feet deep, said to be in good order. It was sold for $9,775. We may add that the Bank paid $24,000 for the corner, 25x84.2, about six years ago.

Dr. GARDNER SPRING'S house, lot, stable and privileges, No. 3 Bond-street, was also offered for sale by Mr. LUDLOW. The bona fide bids ran up to within $25 of $16,000, at which price it was struck down, but not sold, as it was understood more is offered for it at private sale.

Also, by Mr. LUDLOW, was sold the four-story, brown stone, English basement house and lot, on the north-east corner Lexington-avenue and Thirty-first-street, No. 155. Lot 18x85, with a brick
